SMITH ARRIVES FOR GATHERING OF DEMOCRATS

Chairman Raskob Makes "Harmony Tour" of Capitol Hill.

"HOME RULE" STAND DELAY WINS PRAISE

Leader Predicts Referendum Plank Will Be Placed in Platform.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democracy's nominee for President in 1928, arrived in Washington last night wearing a black derby and an expansive smile.

The "Happy Warrior," who will speak at the Jackson Day banquet here tomorrow night and who is expected to play a prominent role at the meeting of the Democratic national committee Saturday, took a suite in the Mayflower Hotel, not far from that occupied by John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee.

"I have nothing to say," said Mr. Smith. "I won't have anything to say tomorrow. However, I may have something to say after the banquet."

The 1928 nominee was surrounded by admirers every time he ventured onto the first floor of the hotel.

Chairman Raskob yesterday went on a harmony tour of Capitol Hill. The dynamic little multimillionaire, who Tuesday night warned his party that it must compromise on prohibition or face a disastrous split, talked with several of the Democratic leaders in Congress, among them Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, who ten months ago accused him of inscribing the "skull and crossbones of an outlawed trade" on the Democratic banner.

Raskob Action Praised.

By the end of the day, Chairman Raskob must have been confident that Saturday's meeting of the Democratic national committee, called primarily to select a city and set a time for the 1932 convention, will be a harmonious, if spirited one.

The announcement by Chairman Raskob the night before that he would not ask the national committee to vote on his "home rule" liquor plan Saturday—that instead he would simply ask that his recommendations be referred to the national convention next summer—brought him widespread praise.

Chairman Raskob said Tuesday night that he was innocent of the charge that he was heading a "stop

2 British Vessels Periled by Storm

Warships Ordered Out to Aid Freighter in Distress.

Plymouth, England, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—Two of the finest ships in the British navy, the battleship Royal Sovereign and the new cruiser Exeter, put to sea in a gale tonight to go to the assistance of the freighter Trevaylor, which had lost a propeller and was drifting in peril near Eddystone Lighthouse.

After a long hunt in the dark and murk, the Royal Sovereign, which had put out from Plymouth on receipt of the Trevaylor's S O S, reported she was unable to locate the distressed vessel and the Exeter was ordered to join in the search.

Brest, France, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The British steamer Jersey City sent out an urgent call for help tonight.

The Jersey City, a vessel of 6,000 tons, reported that its machinery had broken down 10 miles off Bishop's Light and the ship was out of control. A fierce gale was blowing all along the Breton coast.

JULIUS ROSENWALD EXPIRES IN CHICAGO

Man Who Gave More Than $40,000,000 to Human Welfare Was 69.

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.)—Julius Rosenwald, numbered among the greatest philanthropists of all time, died today.

The ravages of arterio sclerosis and kidney ailments that had kept him bedfast for months overcame his weakened heart and he died in his sleep at 2:55 p. m. He would have been 70 years old next August.

The fortune founded on the growth of Sears, Roebuck & Co., of which he was chairman at his death, Mr. Rosenwald pitted against racial and religious intolerance, ignorance and poverty and his benefactions to humanity totaled more than $40,000,000.

His personal contributions, so far as they could be tabulated from incomplete records since the beginning of the century, reached $21,568,670. In addition he had created the Rosenwald foundation through an endowment of 200,000 shares of Sears, Roebuck stock worth $20,000,000 at the time of the gift.

Public men, merchants, employes, humanitarians, friends, all offered high tribute as they learned of his passing.

At the Highland Park home were his widow, the former Mrs. Adelaide Goodkind of St. Paul, who was his second wife and the mother-in-law of his son, Lessing; the two sons, Lessing J. and William, and three daughters, Mrs. Edith R. Stern, of Ravinia; Mrs. Marian R. Stern, of New Orleans, and Mrs. Adele R. Levy, of New York.

The first Mrs. Rosenwald died three years ago and the philanthropist married Mrs. Goodking in 1930, settling upon her $1,000,000. She waived further rights to his estate.

Upon the sons and daughters falls the mantle of his business and philanthropy alike. Lessing and William Rosenwald are executives of Sears Roebuck at Philadelphia.

Only a fortnight ago his children vouchsafed their intention to carry on the benefactions of their father, establishing the Rosenwald family association as the new generation's match of the Rosenwald Foundation.

Julius Rosenwald made of philanthropy a business. He possessed original, definite and fixed ideas on the use of his wealth for the good of man. He stipulated that the vast

U. S. TO ANSWER TOKYO APOLOGY IN CONSUL CASE

Report by Chamberlain Increases Gravity of Flag Insult.

TRIPARTITE PROTEST ON MANCHURIA LOOMS

Capital, London and Paris Again Expected to Remind Japan of Treaty.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Behind the screen of silence which Secretary Stimson set up yesterday regarding the adequacy of Japan's apology for the insult to the American flag and the attack on an American consular officer at Mukden, important decisions with regard to the entire Manchurian situation were in preparation.

The United States will make known its attitude toward the unprovoked assault by Japanese soldiers on American Vice Consul Chamberlain and the subsequent Japanese apology today, or at the very latest tomorrow. The announcement may be made at the same time that a tripartite move by this Government, Great Britain and France to remind once again the Japanese foreign office of its obligations under the nine-power treaty.

France has already taken the first steps in this latest diplomatic maneuver when the Quai d'Orsay yesterday announced that its Ambassador in Tokyo would "courteously" recall the treaty to the Japanese official mind.

Treaty Made in 1921.

This treaty, made at Washington in 1921, provided that the signatory governments could consult among themselves whenever Chinese territorial sovereignty or integrity was in danger.

Japanese Ambassador Debuchi called at the State Department twice during the day. His second visit was at the instance of Secretary Stimson who wished to acquaint him with the official American version of what had happened the night the attack on Consul C. B. Chamberlain was made. The Ambassador left the department and was obviously very concerned with the situation. His usual amile was absent, and his manner was extremely preoccupied.

The statement of Consul Chamberlain was made public by the department and tended to increase the first impressions of the gravity of the incident. The official American version emphasized that the consul's motor car was flying the American flag and characterized the attitude of the Japanese interpreter as "provocative."

This is what happened, in the language of the consul:

Consul Chamberlain was on his way to the railway station in Consul General Myers' car at 6:30 a. m., January 3.

The consul general's car was flying the American flag when it was stopped in the early morning darkness by a Japanese patrol, two soldiers and two plain clothes men. An interpreter questioned Consul Chamberlain in a provocative manner. The chauffeur answered the questions politely and Consul Chamberlain produced his card and his diplomatic passport.

After about five minutes Consul Chamberlain ordered the car to proceed. The way was barred by the FOUR SYSTEMS BEST, RAIL MEN INFORM I. C. C.

CITES IMPORTANCE OF HAVING MILEAGE

L. E. Jeffries, Vice President of Southern Road, Dies at Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

The chiefs of the great Eastern trunk lines yesterday informed the Interstate Commerce Commission they believed four well-balanced railroad systems in the East the best way to meet the needs of shippers and secure efficiency and financial stability for the carriers.

Speaking through Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, the executives outlined their contention that such a set-up would be superior to the five-system arrangement proposed by the commission.

Death marked the opening of the hearings, bringing to a close the life of Louis E. Jeffries, vice president and general counsel of the Southern Railway.

Gasps and Collapses.

Appearing in order to oppose to the bitter end the efforts to take the Monon Railway from the Southern and the Louisville & Nashville and assign it to the Baltimore & Ohio, Mr. Jeffries had just concluded cross-examining Mr. Willard. He seemed to be laboring slightly as he questioned Mr. Willard, but kept his poise and appeared steady of hand as Mr. Willard objected to some of the questioning.

Closing his questioning, Mr. Jeffries returned to his seat. As he started to sit down he gasped and collapsed. A physician and the police fire rescue squad were called, but after working over him half an hour they pronounced him dead.

Mr. Willard read a general statement on behalf of all and then one speaking for his own line. Presidents of the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake & Ohio and Patrick E. Crowley, until recently president of the New York Central, will follow with statements for their individual systems.

Chairman Claude R. Porter, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, presided. He, with Examiner Koch, handled consolidation proceedings when the commission was studying the problem between 1920 and 1929 on orders of Congress. At the outset

Moses Holds Post, Senate Ending Row

25 Ballots Fail to Elect President Pro Tem.; Norris Overruled.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday laid aside its dispute over election of a president pro tempore with Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, still holding the office.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who has led independent Republicans in opposing Moses, signalized the move as the end of the conflict. Norris sought to prevent the election from being laid aside, but was overruled by Vice President Curtis and the Senate, 64 to 17.

He made the point of order against a motion by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, to take up a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to change the time for sessions of Congress to meet. McKellar's motion was adopted without a record vote. The Senate has taken 25 ballots in an effort to elect a president pro tempore.

30 INDIAN CONGRESS LEADERS ARRESTED

Nation in State of Seige as Britain's Drastic Laws Become Operative.

Bombay, India, Thursday, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Thirty leaders of the Indian National Congress were arrested early today at Ahmedabad, where Mahatma Gandhi's "Ashram" (hotel for disciples) is situated.

They were taken in a continuation of the police round-up of all those in charge of the fight for India's independence. The new prisoners included such prominent members of the congress as Mahadev Desai and Manilal Kothari, known as "the Gujerat dictator."

A turbulent India was in what amounted to a state of siege today after the British government's extraordinary summary measures, dealing with every phase of Nationalist activity, became operative yesterday.

New and sweeping special decrees, covering the whole Bombay presidency, outlawed 500 Nationalist organizations, including such institu-

4 Slain, 3 Wounded In Argentine Clash

Seeking Heads of Recent Revolution, La Paz Police Fired On by Rebles.

Parana, Argentine, Jan. 6 (A.P.). At least four men were killed and three wounded at La Paz today when police clashed with a band of rebels while trying to locate the Kennedy brothers, leaders in Sunday's revolutionary movement.

While the chief of police of La Paz was leading 20 men toward a spot where the brothers were understood to have met earlier in the day, they met an armed group which opened fire and caused a bloody fight, resulting possibly in ten casualties.

It was reported that the Kennedys were advancing on La Paz and that the inhabitants were digging trenches and making ready to offer resistance.

TWO HOOVER RELIEF BILLS REACH SENATE

$2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Body Will Be Debated Today.

(Associated Press.)

Two vital measures of President Hoover's emergency relief program went into the Senate yesterday with the support of a preponderant bipartisan majority, ready to speed them along.

Shortly after the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation bill was laid before the Senate, the banking committee ordered to the floor, with a favorable report, the measure increasing the capitalization of the Federal Land Banks by $125,000,000.

The Senate will begin work today on the tremendous finance corporation which is to put billions into the national credit structure. Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, blocked consideration of it yesterday over the protest of both Democratic and Republican leaders.

The Democratic House already has approved the bill putting new millions into the Land Bank system and its enactment shortly by the Senate is in prospect.

The banking committee added $25,000,000 to the measure passed by the House for the Land Banks. Although not so designated, it is intended to make possible through this additional

JOBLESS CARAVAN HEADED BY PRIEST TO BEG CONGRESS FOR RELIEF WORK

Rations Gone, Rapid Preparations Are Made for Feeding Hungry Marchers Arriving Ahead of Schedule.

QUARTERS GIVEN, BUT MANY HAVE TO SLEEP IN VEHICLES

Father Cox, Leader of Pennsylvania Movement, Hopes to See Hoover to Present Plea Directly for Impoverished Thousands.

Father Cox's "jobless army" of 12,000 to 14,000 Pennsylvanians arrived in the Capital during the night amid a dismal rain to present to Congress today a petition for legislation designed to relieve the economic depression.

The militant, but kindly, leader of the unemployed army, after presenting his petitions for relief to the House and Senate, will attempt to obtain an interview with President Hoover at the White House.

Permission to Meet Hoover Requested.

Father Cox said last night he had directed a telegram to President Hoover last Thursday asking for permission to meet him, but as yet had received no reply. "Of course," he said, "I can't blame him for that."

Far ahead of its schedule, the army caught relief organizations unaware of its plight that it was without food, since 85,000 sandwiches, provided beforehand, had been consumed en eroute.

The vanguard reached the District line at Wisconsin avenue about 10 o'clock, two hours after Father Cox had notified Inspector L. I. H. Edwards that the motorcade, which was scheduled to arrive today, was ahead of schedule and appealed to the Police Department to aid him in feeding the marchers and housing them for the night.

Food Funds Provided.

With the aid of Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and Inspector Ernest W. Brown and Allen De Ford, a food broker, Inspector Edwards obtained the use of eight traveling food kitchens from Fort Myer, which will be used today to serve breakfast to the men. The food for the can will be provided through funds furnished by the District employment committee, obtained through a recent charity football game.

The District employment committee have pledged $1,000 to purchase rations for the marchers and more if necessary will be available. A request by Senator Davis, of Secretary of War Hurley, to use the kitchens of Fort Myer was refused. Through the intercession of Gen. George V. H. Moseley, Assistant Chief of Staff, the use of the equipment was obtained.

Father Cox, who estimated that his marchers numbered from 11,000 to 15,000, said they were being carried in approximately 3,000 trucks and automobiles. He has pledged the Police Department that the march of his men will be orderly and there is no likelihood that they will be disorderly in their march about the Capitol.

Many Sleep in Cars.

After hours of work, Inspectors Brown and Edwards succeeded in obtaining the use of the old National Hotel, which is now an armory for the National Guard, the Sixth Marine Brigade Annex on John Marshall place, the Old Cordoza School to give the men shelter for the night.

Even with these shelters, hundreds of men were forced to spend the night in trucks and automobiles and wherever they could find protection from the driving rain that beat down upon them during the day and night. The last meal that they had was at 2:30 o'clock yesterday and there were no facilities of feeding them last night.

The vanguard of the unemployed army was met at the District line last night by an escort of police. They were led down Wisconsin avenue and thence to Twenty-second street, to Virginia avenue, to Constitution avenue, and to parking places assigned to them in the vicinity of Maryland avenue and the Botanic Garden.

March Is Orderly.

The men were orderly during their march and are virtually all American citizens, in contrast to the aliens who

GLASS BLAMES U. S. FOR BONDS LOSSES

State Department Accused of Approving Defaulted Foreign Issues.

(Associated Press.)

Moral responsibility for every American dollar lost in foreign bond investments was charged against the State Department yesterday by Senator Glass of Virginia. His vehement utterance was evoked by testimony before the Senate finance committee that a private loan of $23,000,000 to Bolivia, now in default, had been approved by the Commerce Department for diplomatic reasons.

Grosvenor M. Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of that department, told the committee he "reluctantly" gave his consent to the loan, which was secured by bonds, when the State Department said "it might result in embarassment if we turn it down."

In addition, Jones told of a $20,000,000 short term loan to Colombia in 1930 after his department had published a bulletin indicating that country was borrowing too much.

His testimony was given in the committee's investigation of the flotation of foreign securities in this country, intended to determine its extent and whether there is an organized movement for cancellation of

2 Women Fliers Missing; Crash Kills Dale Jackson

Endurance Record Co-Holder Falls to Death During Exhibition; Missing Airman's Body Found on Mountain; 4 In Bomber Plunge Live.

(Associated Press.)

A veteran "stunt" flier was killed, two experienced women pilots were missing and four army aviators escaped serious injury in airplane mishaps yesterday.

Dale "Red" Jackson, coholder of the world's endurance flying record, plunged to his death in the course of an exhibition flight over Miami. Hundreds witnessed the accident.

The treacherous mountain ranges between southeastern Pennsylvania and West Virginia gave up the body of an Army pilot missing since Christmas, but held the secret of the whereabouts of two women fliers who were flying from St. Louis to New York.

Cavalry units and posses searched for the women, Mrs. Ruth Stewart and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, southwest of Harrisburg. Low ceilings prevented an aerial search.

Two school teachers arrived in Washington yesterday with reports of seeing what they believed may have been the plane in which Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Stanford were lost.

Mrs. Julia Guernsey, of Elmira, N. Y., and Miss Emma Ostrander, of Cooperstown, N. Y., teachers at National Park Seminary, were motoring between Harrisburg and Gettysburg shortly after dark Tuesday. When 10 miles from the latter place, they said they suddenly saw something in the sky that looked like a falling plane. One remarked to the other that it might fall on them, then a traffic jam drew their attention away. When they looked back the light was gone.

They thought no more of the incident until they arrived in Washington and saw newspaper reports that the two women fliers were lost, when they notified The Washington Post.

Cab Meters Rule Upheld In Reply to House Attack

Unanimous House action, calling on the Public Utilities Commission to rescind its order requiring taxicabs to install meters by Sunday, was countered last night by Chairman Mason M. Patrick, in a statement defending the course of the commission.

Maj. Gen. Patrick reviewed the background of the taxicab order and asserted that the meter rate is "fairly comparable with the zone rate" and that the system ordered by the commission is "the fairest and most equitable for both the public and the operators," he concluded with a reference to the House action.

"The commission has learned informally of a resolution concerning this matter passed today by the House of Representatives," the statement said. "A copy will no doubt be received shortly. Until then, the commission can not determine what it will do, but will, of course, obey any mandate of Congress."

The request by the House was considered the hardest blow that the taxicab order has yet received and may result in its revocation. The action was taken on a resolution introduced by Representative Joseph W Byrns (Democrat), of Tennessee, after Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, had declared on the floor that installation of meters

District Scout Executive Lauds Post Essay Contest

Many Other Tributes Paid Plan to Have Students Write on Washington; Entry List Mounts as Interest in Competition Grows Rapidly.

"George Washington helped to build that great heritage which is the right of every American boy," declared Walter MacPeak, educational director of the District of Columbia Council of Boy Scouts of America, yesterday in a letter commending The Post Washington Essay Contest.

This was only one of many tributes paid by Washingtonians to The Post's patriotic enterprise in arranging the Washington Essay Contest, in which $1,000 in cash prizes is to be distributed to boys and girls in the public, private and parochial schools of Washington and the surrounding territory.

A huge pile of letters from prospective entrants on the desk of the Contest Editor yesterday showed the tremendous interest exhibited by the young people of the city in the contest. Many of the letters contained application blanks for the Washington booklets sent through the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission to the writers of the essays in order to give them salient facts in the life of George Washington.

Many of the entrants are Boy and Girl Scouts of the District, and it is hoped that these and other organized groups of young people will join in the contest with a hearty will.

In his letter, Mr. MacPeak continued:

"I am delighted to know that many Scouts are already at work on their essays about George Washington, America's first Scout.

"We are preparing to celebrate Scouting's twenty-second anniversary.

"The influence of George Washington on the boy Abraham Lincoln and on all Scouts is shown in the various episodes of our anniversary week pageant to be presented at McKinley Technical High School Friday evening, February 12.

"Scout groups all over America are helping to commemorate the 200th

U.S. PAY SLASH FACING CLIMAX IN HOUSE TODAY

Authors of 4 Measures to Appear Before Committee.

PLAN GIVEN FIRST AIRING IN SENATE

A. F. of L. Is Opposed to Any Attempts at Reductions, Declares Green.

The question of governmental salary reductions, fought pro and con yesterday in the Senate and a subject for conferences and comment in the House, may come to a head this morning.

Four authors of pay cut measures will appear before the House committee on expenditures in executive departments to explain to Chairman John J. Cochran and his colleagues just why they are asking a cut.

The committee, which may table the measures, or select one for favorable report, is not wholeheartedly sympathetic. Chairman Cochran has expressed opposition to the move. And at least two proponents of bills have modified their original stand on the issue.

Chairman Cochran last night was called on to inform the committee of the opposition of the American Federation of Labor to any pay cut proposals, in a statement by President William Green.

"The American Federation of Labor is uncompromisingly opposed to any and all attempts which are being made to force a reduction in the salary of Federal employes," President Green wrote.

He said the federation opposes the bills, first, because reduction of consuming power would bar a return to prosperity; second, because a "depressing" example would be set for private industry; and third, because Federal pay at present is so "modest" as to barely maintain Government workers in "decency and comfort."

While the administration gathered data to support its stand on maintenance of wages, and the executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes prepared to back leaders at a meeting tomorrow, the pay cut question received its first airing yesterday on the floor of the Senate.

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, demanding a 10 per cent cut in departmental expenditures, said reduction in salaries may necessarily become part of that program. He made clear that he was not asking primarily a salary cut, but a reduction of expenditures that might possibly be accomplished without touching wages.

Later he told The Post that if salaries must be reduced he would favor cuts under a graduated scale with members of Congress and high salaried Government employes at the top of the list.

In the floor discussion, Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, declared he would oppose any reduction either in his own salary or the pay of Federal employes, so long as large corporations make the huge profits he charged they are making now.

Meantime two-thirds of the Pennsylvania delegation, meeting at the suggestion of Representative Guy E. Campbell (Republican), conferred on the pay cut proposals. Afterward Representative Henry W. Temple (Republican), made known that a majority of the members registered opposition to the move.

Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), first member of Congress to introduce a pay cut bill, attended the meeting. He told newspapermen later that he would oppose salary reduction unless salaries of Congress members are included.

Frear Hits Extravagance.

"The reason I introduced the bill was not because I favor lowering of salaries, but because good business requires that the budget be balanced," he said. "I am in favor of reducing all Government expenses until we have the money in the Treasury."

Representative James A. Frear (Republican), Wisconsin, yesterday protested "any Pecksniff salary-shaving policy," in a letter to Chairman Cochran, of the House committee on expenditures in executive departments.

He said the plan was particularly objectionable in view of "the present system of congressional extravagance" under which appropriations have increased from $726,400,000 in 1911 to $4,220,000,000 in 1931. He attacked especially the proposed $700,000,000 naval building program, and made satiric reference to "the great flock of naval butterflies at Newport and elsewhere."

He told Representative Cochrane that two proponents of the salary cut measures were a bank president and an oil promoter, respectively.

Dale Predicts No Cut.

"Everyone congratulates these witnesses on their good fortune," he said, "but with large outside incomes they have no fair conception of conditions confronted by those depending on a modest stipend with which to meet living conditions and other obligations."

Senator Porter H. Dale (Republican), Vermont, chairman of the Senate Civil Service committee, yesterday predicted that the pay-cut proposals will not succeed. He said it would be "ridiculous" to make the pay subject to "every fluctuation in the stock market, going down every time the market goes down.

Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, in a statement said that while he would not oppose reduction in salaries of the higher paid personnel, he was against any cuts in the wages of those lower down in the scale.

Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, who has previously urged a reduction in the salaries of members, said he thought a general cut in wages of Government employes would have a bad effect on the country.

HUNGER MARCHERS ARRIVE

composed the last march upon the Capitol at the opening session of Congress.

Father Cox estimates that 30 per cent of the army is composed of men who served during the World War. He was emphatic in saying that his march is nonsectarian and that 70 per cent of the men are of faiths different than his own.

Gen. Jacob Coxey, now Mayor of Masillon, Ohio, who led a march to the Capitol many years ago, sent Father Cox a telegram, saying "his spirit was marching with them."

After the men left the trucks and automobiles, they marched through the rain to the old National Hotel, where, without cots, or blankets, they found bivouac on the hard floors of the old building. Other buildings were pressed into service in an attempt to afford them shelter for the night. Many of the men were shouting for food.

Other Leaders of Army.

With Father Cox, is the Rev. C. F. Orelmanski, of Alleghany County, Pa., and Edward McCloskey, mayor of Johnstown, Pa., who had been in office only two days when he left the city hall and, with a contingent of unemployed from that city, joined the marchers.

Today the men will be fed from the rolling kitchens of the Army, which will be manned by workers from the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, and other relief organizations. About 10:30 o'clock the marchers will assemble on Maryland avenue, between First and Seventh street southwest, and will march to the southwest driveway to the Capitol and to the East Plaza.

Father Cox will present petitions for legislation for unemployment relief to Senator Davis, and a similar petition to Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who will offer them in the respective chambers.

Will Visit Arlington.

From there the marchers will return to their trucks and will later visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Senator Davis will accompany them on this trip. Father Cox will leave the main body of his army and will go to the White House joining the men later at Arlington Cemetery. The men will park their automobiles on the parade ground at Fort Myer, and will march to the Unknown's Tomb.

The commissary organization of the march is completely disorganized.

Plans had been made for the men to bring six days' rations with them, and each was to bring enough money for gasoline and oil to carry them here.

So few of the men were able to carry out these instructions that virtually all arrived here with empty stomachs.

Notified of Arrival.

The first intimation Inspetor Edwards had that the 5½-mile caravan of marchers would arrive last night was a telegram from Father Cox, received last night from Gettysburg, Pa.

It read: "Almost 10,000 cold and hungry unemployed men from Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania towns will arrive in Washington tonight. Vanguard will reach your city about 6:30 o'clock and the remainder, traveling chiefly in trucks, will continue to arrive throughout the night. I ask your assistance in finding accommodations for these worthy men. Maj. Adams, of the Pennsylvania State police and police of Pennsylvania towns which we passed will tell you these men are orderly American citizens and ask only a chance to work."

Though no trouble is anticipated, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford has canceled the leaves of all policemen. All police preparations that characterized the march of the Communists at the opening of Congress have been made. There will be no tear-gas pistols or sawed-off shotguns in evidence as at the last demonstrations at the Capitol.

Plans for Reception.

The Capitol police force will be reinforced by Metropolitan Police reserves to prevent any possible disorder. Sergt.-at-Arms Kenneth Romney, of the House, has instructed Capt. Stephen J. Gnash, of the Capitol police, to have his force treat the demonstrators with every possible courtesy.

"We have asked the Metropolitan Police for a force adequate to deal with the situation," Mr. Romney said. "We do not anticipate any trouble and we do not want any."

In his earlier communications with the police, Father Cox said, "Our men will carry American flags and the only banners which we will carry will say, 'Father Cox's jobless march.'"

Some of the advance guard of the unemployed men arrived here early yesterday. They readily received tickets for admission to the galleries of the House and Senate from various members of Congress.

Other Accommodations.

About 60 of the men found accommodations last night in the Salvation Army headquarters. Approximately 100 were cared for at the Central Union Mission.

Father Orlemanski and Mayor McCloskey praised the City of Huntingdon, Pa., for its handling of the marchers. They said the small city fed and housed the entire group very comfortably.

Father James R. Cox, the head of the relief-seeking expedition, is attached to Old St. Patrick's Church, in an industrial section of Pittsburgh. He speaks four times a week over the radio, dealing mainly with social problems. Father Cox and Father Orlemanski will say mass this morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Police Radio Dispatches Telegram for Marcher

A telegram for the Rev. James R. Cox, informing him that a relative of one of his hunger marchers was critically ill in McKeesport, Pa., reached him within fifteen minutes after it was received in Washington last night, although the priest had not reached the center of Washington on his march.

The telegram was given him just after he entered the Capital through the agency of the police radio system.

Lieut. Charles Weber, at police headquarters, received the telegram and immediately sent out a radio call for Father Cox. The call was picked up by the Fourteenth Precinct scout car, which was convoying the army, and was relayed to its leader. He had the telegram read to him over the nearest telephone.

Jail Shelter Given Five Hunger Marchers

Five of Father Cox's hunger marchers came to grief in Rockville, Md., when the ramshackle car they were riding in broke down. They walked to the Montgomery County Courthouse and asked Policeman Paul Watkins about accommodations.

The policeman took the matter up with Joseph Moxley, county jailer, and Mr. Moxley invited the group to pass the night in the jail. They were not placed in cells but in dormitories which have been provided for such visitors in the jail, which is perched atop the new courthouse.

The men gave their names as follows: Steve Adomitz, 45 years old; John Warwick, 46; Dennis Loird, 47; G. A. Loird, 48, and Mike Kornick, 49. All gave their addresses as Pittsburgh, Pa., and occupation "none." Mrs. Moxley, wife of the jailer, said all five were clean-looking and appeared to be "very decent sort of people."

Montgomery County police escorted the motorcade through the county to the District line, where they were met by Washington police. Some confusion ensued at the District line, but police soon managed to straighten out the tangle and start the hunger marchers into the Capital.

21 Freight Ride Stealers Of Hunger March Jailed

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 6.—More than 60 reputed recruits in Father Cox's army, bound from Pittsburgh for Washington by fast freight, ran into an ambush of railroad policemen late this afternoon and 21 were sent to the city jail for two days.

The free riders were sighted by three members of the Pennsylvania Railroad force as a Pittsburgh train pulled into Woodberry Station. Aided by a Baltimore patrolman, the railroad policemen closed in on the freight car in which they were traveling. About 40 of them scampered off the railroad property while the policemen were taking into custody the 21 who did not get a fast enough start out of the car.

At a hearing before Magistrate Samuel Lasch each was assessed the costs of the cases—$1.45. They said they had missed the crowd which set out from Pittsburgh for the Capital by automobile, and had decided on the railroad to make up time.

They said they had not eaten today and Capt. Frank Gatch and Lieut. John R. Schuler bought eight loaves of bread, some bologna and coffee and fed them before they were taken to jail in default of the payment of their fines.

They will not be released until Friday morning.

Supported by Pinchot.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Father Cox's 5½-mile caravan of Pennsylvania's unemployed rolled into the State capital today, heard Gov. Pinchot say their cause was just, and consumed his sandwiches and coffee.

An hour before a rainy, winter twilight fell, they moved on to Washington with a shout.

"Come on! Go with us! It's the only way we'll ever get anything!" one pilgrim called to bystanders as the crowded automobiles moved southward.

Led by the Pittsburgh priest "to show it's not a Communistic movement," the army will ask Congress for direct Federal relief for the unemployed. They hoped to reach Washington tonight and hold a demonstration tomorrow.

Gov. Pinchot included a rap at the State Republican organization in his advice to the marchers.

Raps G. O. P. Organization.

"Pennsylvania, led astray by the Republican State organization, has failed lamentably in making provision both for work relief and direct relief," he told marchers.

The marchers ate the capitol lunch room out of sandwiches and four local bakeries out of doughnuts. They drank 9,000 cups of coffee before they were ready for speechmaking by the governor, Father Cox, John M. Phillips, president of the State Federation of Labor, and Eddie McCloskey, mayor of Johnstown, and one of the marchers.

McCloskey said the marchers should go to both the Republican and Democratic national conventions "to tell them and show them what we want." He referred to Pinchot as the future "President Gifford Pinchot."

Wagner Reintroduces Employment Measure

(Associated Press.)

A bill for creation of a United States employment service, which was pocket-vetoed by President Hoover last session, was reintroduced yesterday by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York.

The service would be operated in cooperation with the States. The measure would authorize the expenditure of $1,500,000 during the first year's operation, and $4,000,000 annually thereafter, through June 30, 1937. Three-fourths the funds are intended for apportionment among the States to assist in maintaining State systems of public employment offices. The New Yorker said he hoped to have hearings on the measure before the commerce committee soon.

Legion Declares War On U.S. Unemployment

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Henry L. Stevens, jr., national commander of the American Legion, today wired all State commanders that the legion "is now at war against unemployment."

He called on each post to form at once a committee to contact every employer, large and small, in all lines of business, "to insist that the employer's present paid personnel be increased 10 per cent before February 1."

Clean-Up in Honolulu Reported Plan of U. S.

Honolulu, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Reports were current here today that the Navy had canceled scheduled fleet maneuvers in Hawaiian waters and that the War and Navy Departments in Washington were pressing for a cleanup in Honolulu following the second recent attack on a white woman.

The reports grew from conferences between Gov. Lawrence Judd, Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of the Fourteenth Naval District, and Maj. Gen. Briant H. Wells, commander of the Hawaiian Department.

Representative Quin's Illness Is Not Serious

(Associated Press.)

Representative Quin was resting comfortably and in no danger last night after suffering an attack of indigestion that forced him to leave a military affairs committee hearing earlier yesterday.

Dr. George Calver, House physician, said the Mississippi Democrat in all probability would be able to return to work today.

TWO GIRL FLIERS MISSING; DALE JACKSON DIES IN CRASH

An Army bombing plane crashed at Jacksonville, Fla., but the four occupants escaped serious injury.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—through rain and low-hanging fog, cavalry and posses today covered many a mile of wild woodland between Sterrett's and Doubling Gap, southwest of this city in search of two women fliers believed victims of one more airplane disaster of the Pennsylvania mountains. Six planes attempting to aid were driven back by a ceiling lower than the mountain tops.

The women, Mrs. Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, of Indianapolis, both experienced fliers holding transport licenses, left St. Louis last Thursday announcing they proposed a flight from New York to Buenos Aires.

Their plane was last seen by Benny Shelton, St. Louis, piloting Mrs. Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Woerner, in an accompanying plane. Shelton landed at the Harrisburg Airport yesterday afternoon, but did not give the alarm, until evening. He said the missing ship had cleared the last ridge of the mountains before a cloud bank separated them and that he had expected the women to put into port before night.

Tonight Shelton asked points along the Atlantic seaboard for reports of any planes seen putting out to sea.

During the day, Shelton and five other pilots made flights over the area near which the lost plane disappeared. All were balked by low visibility and failure to find much-sought "holes" in the fog blanket. Other planes remained at local airports, awaiting better flying conditions.

With the airplanes fog-bound, posses directed by deputy sheriffs and two details of Pennsylvania National Guard cavalry, one of them from Gov. Pinchot's crack troop, bore the brunt of the day's search.

Hundreds See Jackson Killed.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Dale "Red" Jackson, daredevil of the skies and coholder of the world's endurance flying record, plunged to his death at Municipal Airport here today, in view of hundreds of persons who watched him stunt a small amphibian plane 3,000 feet above the ground.

Jackson had just completed an inside loop when the horrified spectators below, inspecting final preparations for tomorrow's opening of the all-American air races, saw a wing fall away from the plane. The plane tipped over to the side and slipped into its fatal descent. Then the second wing fell away.

The crowd watched for Jackson to jump from the pilot's seat with his parachute, but he apparently was unable to get clear.

Body Found in Plane.

The wingless plane crashed to the ground about a mile from the stand for judges of the air races. One wing soared away for several blocks before landing.

Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, both of St. Louis, set a world's endurance record July 30, 1929, when they brought the St. Louis Robin to the ground after 420 hours 21 minutes 30 seconds of sustained flight. July 4, 1930, the Hunter brothers set a new record of 553 hours 41 minutes 30 seconds at Chicago.

Determined to regain their lost honors, the red-headed Jackson and O'Brine went into the air again at St. Louis the next month, and on August 17, 1931, set a new world's record of 647 hours 28 minutes 30 seconds—31½ minutes less than 27 days sustained flight.

Mrs. Sally Jackson, the flier's widow, came here with him from their St. Louis home several days ago as he prepared to enter the air races for the fourth time. She was not at the field this afternoon.

Lost Flier's Body Found.

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Wedged in the cockpit of his wrecked plane, the body of Lieut. E. H. Bobbitt, missing Army pilot, was found today on one of the highest peaks of the Cheat Mountains. A farmer and a trapper came upon the wreckage while tramping through the hills in search of the aviator, who disappeared Christmas Day while en route from Selfridge Field, Mich., to his home in Hot Springs, Va.

The body was charred almost beyond recognition. The plane, with a broken wing, was badly burned.

The ship apparently struck a tree on Pool's Knob and crashed, bottom down, in the bushes.

The peak where Bobbitt met his death rises almost 4,000 feet.

Three miles south Bobbitt would have found a clearing on which he could have landed—the only clearing in that part of the mountains.

M. S. Simmons, 36, a farmer, and Carl Reefer, 40, a trapper, found the wreckage shortly after noon. They notified Sergt. Arnold Moore, of the West Virginia State police, who left with a squad of his men to bring the body back to Elkins.

Tonight they climbed the mountain side, carrying flashlights. It will take from five to eight hours to return to Elkins.

HOUSE TO RECEIVE TARIFF BILL TODAY

Undersecretary of Treasury Expected to Be Committee Witness.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The Democratic tariff bill will be reported to the House by the ways and means committee today and passed on to the Senate before the end of the week, Democratic leaders of the House announced yesterday.

Determination of the Democratic majority of the committee to report the measure today was made clear by Representative James W. Collier (Democrat) Mississippi, chairman of the committee, after it became apparent that none of the administration executives invited by the committee to appear before the committee would testify at the hearings held yesterday afternoon.

The hearings are to be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. The heads of the Treasury, Commerce and State Departments have been invited to appear and Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is expected to be the first witness.

Reciprocal Tariff Plan.

Announcement by Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, that the Democrats had decided to eliminate the section of the bill authorizing the President to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements, was believed to have removed an important point on which administration officials would have considerable to say in opposition. It had been decided to cut that section out, Mr. Crisp said, because of the possible complications it might entail.

The Democratic legislative program in the House contemplates consideration of the reconstruction finance corporation after passage of the tariff measure.

The reconstruction corporation bill is expected to be passed next week, after which it is planned to take up the agriculture appropriations bill. Meanwhile the ways and means committee is to launch hearings on tax revision. The committee expects to complete these, draft a bill and have it passed by the House by the end of the month.

Blunders of Republican administrations were blamed by the joint House-Senate policy committee for the mounting Federal deficit. The committee met in Speaker Garner's office in the morning and drafted a statement expressing the desire of the Democratic party to decrease Government expenditures, and its agreement that taxes must be increased.

Threat to Farms Seen.

The statement, however, did not go into details about tax increases, specifically reserving party decision until after the ways and means committee had completed hearings in the course of which Treasury officials will be invited to set forth in detail the administration's tax revision plan.

M. J. Flynn, of Washington, representing the American Wage-Earners Protective Conference, and James A. Emery, representing the council of the National Association of Manufacturers of the United States, were the two witnesses appearing at the tariff hearing yesterday.

Senator Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, issued a statement last night asserting the Democratic tariff policy "if put into effect would mean the extinction of American agriculture as a self-sustaining, self-respecting industry."

"There could be no possible reciprocal tariff agreements," he said, "between the United States and any of the foreign countries which did not open American markets to the agricultural exports of those countries."

Johnston Will Wed Mrs. Zella Barnes

Former District Commissioner and Red Cross Official Engaged.

Confirmation of reports of the engagement of Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, former District Commissioner, and Mrs. Zella M. Barnes, former wife of Col. Harry C. Barnes, U. S. A., retired, was given to The Post from a reliable source last night.

Date for the wedding has not yet been set, but it is expected to take place in the near future. Gen Johnston was appointed brigadier general by President Woodrow Wilson during the World War, and was made commander of the Northeastern Department of the Army, with headquarters at Boston. He retired after the war.

Mrs. Barnes and Col. Barnes were divorced three years ago. They have one son. Mrs. Barnes is director of public information of the annual roll call of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross. She has made her home in Washington for a number of years. She now resides at the Chastleton.

Wanderer Claims To Be Jesse James

Asks "Complete Freedom" on Visit to Governor of Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—An aged man who insisted he was the "one and only" Jesse James, notorious outlaw of many years ago, visited Gov. Henry S. Caulfield this afternoon and asked him for "complete freedom."

A delegation of Excelsior Springs citizens, who said they were inclined to believe the man is the "original" Jesse James, appeared with him. Among them was Mayor Fred F. Hagel, Chief of Police William A. Payne, and Dick Cravens, a retired druggist. Payne, who said he knew Jesse James as a boy, related that he viewed the body of the man killed in St. Joseph, Mo., by Bob Ford, and did not believe it was that of the outlaw.

"Jesse James," who said he was almost 90 years old, told Gov. Caulfield he had been "just wandering" for about 40 years.

DEBATE STARTS IN SENATE TODAY ON RELIEF MEASURE

amount the execution of a clause which permits the banks to grant extensions on farm mortgage installments at their discretion.

Refusing to yield to importunities from both sides of the House, Blaine declined to withdraw his objection. He asserted the bill is designed "to help the banks which are responsible for the depression, and to bolster up the stock market." In addition, he criticized President Hoover for not calling a special session of Congress to enact relief legislation.

"There is not a mouthful of food or a job in this bill," he asserted. "All it does is come to the support of 500 or so banking institutions which have exploited the public through stocks and bonds."

The Wisconsin senator predicted a worse plight for the country's financial institutions unless relief is given industry and agriculture.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, arose to ask if the corporation should avert the failure of any industries or banks, thereby protecting the depositors, "wouldn't that put bread in the mouths of the depositors and keep men at work?"

In answer to Blaine's contention that there had not been time for members to become acquainted with the contents of the measure, Glass reminded him that the banking committee, of which both are members, had gone over it "sentence by sentence."

Immediate Debate Sought.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, argued that immediate debate on the measure would enable the senator to become "better informed on the measure."

The importance of prompt action was emphasized by Senator Walcott, its author, who asserted the demand for the creation of the huge corporation is "tremendous and country-wide."

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, joined in urging that consideration of the measure be permitted.

"The administration has been drifting along aimlessly for the last few months," he said, "but this is no reason for us to join in the drifting. It looks like an opportunity for the Senate to arrest the drifting."

In reporting the measure to the Senate the banking committee urged "all possible speed."

It called attention to the plight of the railroads and to "several serious bank failures" in different parts of the country and said "this series of failures must be stopped, and as soon as possible."

Effect of Private Relief.

Private relief funds in two of America's larger cities and in the State of Illinois were pronounced inadequate yesterday by civic leaders.

This was the substance of statements presented to the Senate manufactures committee by C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, and E. L. Ryerson, of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois governor's commission on unemployment.

Each said public funds would be necessary, and each looked first toward the State as their source. Neither opposed nor indorsed Federal relief grants, and neither was asked directly whether he favored governmental aid.

A more optimistic picture came from G. W. Welsh, city manager of Grand Rapids, Mich., who thought his town was getting along pretty well. The city bears almost the whole relief burden there, he said.

The committee is weighing proposals by Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, and Chairman La Follette, to make Federal appropriations for helping the States, cities and counties meet their demands for relief.

Scrubwoman in Steamer On Way to New Orleans

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Randi Lerohl, 48, of Superior, Wis., scrubwoman, who floated more than halfway down the Mississippi River in a flat-bottomed rowboat, left here late today aboard the steamer Indiana of the Mississippi Valley Barge Line for New Orleans. Her boat also was taken aboard the steamer.

Miss Lerohl abandoned her trip by rowboat yesterday after being persuaded the remainder of the voyage down the river would be much more hazardous.

HOUSE STRIKES SELF IN ECONOMY DEMAND

Representatives Slice Off $700,000 From Its Bill, While Senate Orates.

(Associated Press.)

The satire of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, sharpened Senate demands for governmental economy yesterday as the House practiced it by cutting out of a bill $700,000 it had planned to spend on itself.

The Mississippi Democrat kept the attention of the galleries and the Senators with his forceful and piquant comments on Government spending, but nobody disputed his conclusions or his demand for drastic savings.

In fact, his political foes on the other side of the chamber, among them the veteran Smoot, of Utah, joined in.

During a lull in the discussion, Senator George, Georgia Democrat, introduced a resolution giving the President authority to consolidate overlapping Government bureaus.

$700,000 Is Lopped Off.

Both Democrats and Republicans also aided in lopping $700,000 from the first deficiency bill, which called for $135,156,000 as it passed the House.

That was about 10 per cent less than the Administration asked. The $700,000 would have been spent on the offices of representatives. Representative Oliver (Democrat), Alabama, said with times as hard as they are, he felt the offices could do without the improvements.

The House agreed with him, 234 to 133. Earlier it struck out $200,000 asked for remodeling the State, War and Navy Building.

Thundering that the people never had been so aroused over the huge sums the Government spends, Harrison suggested pay cuts in governmental salaries; reduction in personnel; slashes in the road and construction appropriations, and discontinuance of many Government publications.

About Those Bulletins.

He read some of the subjects discussed in bulletins issued by Federal departments. He said one discussed "which room to use for love making."

"That's a sample of the bulletins that are being sent out at Government expense," the Mississippi Democrat said.

Among other subjects, Harrison said, the bulletins discussed were:

"How to keep bed sheets clean."

"Lamb as you like it."

"Reindeer recipes."

"Use of the metric system in nutrition."

"Principles of window curtains."

"Suits for small boys."

"Children's rompers," with pictures.

"Where suits wear out" and "Ensembles for sunny days."

While Harrison talked, Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, who formerly was Secretary of Labor, listened attentively.

Harrison called attention to the fact that some of the bulletins were issued by the Labor Department while Davis headed it.

Post Gallery of Notables

SPEAKER JOHN N. GARNER.

JOHN NANCE GARNER is today the dominant star in the Capitol Hill galaxy. He is the first Speaker of the House the Democrats have had in twelve years, and no out-of-town visitor would think of leaving the Capitol without having seen him. The pity of it is that the visitor can not also hear him. Not that he is a great orator. He isn't. He isn't even a fair orator. But in a rough-and-tumble debate, there is no man in the House who is his equal.

However, Garner has little to say these days—at least, in the House chamber. His task is simply to preside. One sees him on the imposing throne of the Speaker, a little fellow in a sack suit, with a flaming face, huge white eyebrows that almost cover his sharp eyes, and a small, hawk-like nose.

Garner is a man of wealth. He acquired it through the practice of law, through the raising of goats, and in the banking business. Nevertheless, he is a man of almost Spartan simplicity. He and Mrs. Garner live in a downtown hotel, and either walk to the Capitol or use a street car. The Speaker rates an official automobile, but Garner, in the interest of economy, announced that he would do without one.

Mr. Garner is robust and energetic. He built himself up by riding the range. He keeps himself healthy by going to bed every night at 9 o'clock.

AL SMITH ARRIVES HERE FOR JACKSON DAY DINNER

Roosevelt movement;" that he was neither trying to stop nor advance any candidate. The Roosevelt people, however, insist that Raskob is against their man.

In his visit to the Capitol yesterday, Chairman Raskob first called on Speaker of the House John N. Garner. Then he called on Senator Robinson, who is Democratic floor leader of the Senate, and was vice presidential nominee in 1928; Representative Henry Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader in the House, and Senators Walsh, of Massachusetts; Harrison, of Mississippi; Lewis, of Illinois; Hull of Tennessee; Tydings, of Maryland, and Wagner, of his own State of New York.

Leaving the Capitol, Chairman Raskob had this to say:

"I have no doubt that the Democratic platform will contain a prohibition referendum plank."

Just because the Democratic drys in Congress were pleased that Raskob had decided against pressing for a vote on his home rule plan at Saturday's meeting of the Democratic national committee, does not mean that these drys approved of his present attitude on prohibition.

"Home Rule" Called Wet.

The truth of the matter is that the drys look upon Raskob's "home rule" plan as a wet plan. Raskob himself says that it is neither wet nor dry, that it is simply a referendum, a measure designed to allow the States to vote on a constitutional amendment that would permit them to become either wet or dry.

It is significant, however, that while the professional wets have praised the plan the professional drys have condemned it. The drys look upon any proposal that might change the status quo as a wet proposal.

That isn't the only objection that the drys in Congress have to Raskob's proposal. They would really like to see Raskob and the other leaders forget about prohibition and concentrate on other matters, the serious economic situation, preferably.

New Hampshire's Voting Gives Cheer to Democrats

The election of a Democrat to the House of Representatives in the First District of New Hampshire Tuesday was hailed yesterday as another triumph—another evidence of the Democratic "trend"—by Democratic leaders. Normally the district is a Republican one.

Commenting on the victory of William N. Rogers, Democrat, over former Gov. John H. Bartlett, Republican, for the seat last held by the late Fletcher Hale, Republican, Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic national committee, had this to say:

2 Women Reported Held by Savages

Believed to Be Family of Skipper Whose Vessel Was Lost 8 Years Ago.

Darwin, Australia, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—A story that two white women are being held captive by wild blacks in the far north of Australia is being told by members of the Myall Tribe. Newspapers are demanding the government send a search expedition, aided by airplanes, into Arnhem Land to bring out the women.

The Myalls, a primtive tribe with a good reputation, declare two white "lubras," one old and one young, have been in Arnhem Land "for many moons" and are regarded as powerful witches by their captors.

Eight years ago the steamer Douglas Mawson, a small coastal trader, was lost with all hands in the stormy Gulf of Carpentaria, North Australia. It was known the captain's wife and daughter had been aboard and the possibility of their having been rescued and captured was investigated.

MELLON IMPEACHED BY HOUSE MEMBER

Patman Charges Secretary With "High Crimes" and Asks Inquiry.

(Associated Press.)

The impeachment of Andrew W. Mellon was demanded by a Democrat yesterday for "high crimes and misdemeanors" during his eleven years as Secretary of the Treasury.

Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, catalogued to a crowded chamber a long list of charges and submitted a resolution directing an investigation by the judiciary committee.

On the motion of Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, the resolution immediately was referred to that committee. Its chairman is another Texan, Representative Sumners.

The judiciary committee meets today, and Mr. Sumners said the Patman resolution would be presented to it with other matters awaiting the committee's attention. Under customary procedure the House first must vote an impeachment investigation, though the committee may make a preliminary inquiry to determine whether that authority should be requested.

Mr. Patman's charges came late in the day when the chamber was filled with representatives called in to vote on an appropriation bill. The Texan himself had not expected to speak until today, but was notified suddenly by leaders of the earlier opportunity.

The chamber quickly was hushed when Mr. Patman said, "I rise to a question of constitutional privilege," and members sat silently and intent during the statement, which began:

"On my own responsibility as a member of this house I impeach Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, for high crimes and misdemeanors and offer the following resolution."

All Patmans charges were included as a preamble to his investigating resolution and dealt with the relationship of Mellon's private business attachments and his public office. A law enacted in 1789 forbidding Secretaries of the Treasury from engaging directly or indirectly in trade and commerce and making offenders guilty of a "high misdemeanor" with penalties of $3,000 fine and removal from office, formed the base of most of the accusations.

Contrary to this statute, Patman said, "Mellon has been directly interested in carrying on the business of trade and commerce and that he is now and has been since taking the oath of office as Secretary of the Treasury the owner of a substantial interest in the form of voting stock in more than 300 corporations with resources aggregating $3,000,000,000, being some of the largest corporations on earth."

FOUR SYSTEMS BEST, RAIL MEN TELL I. C. C.

the chairman announced this would be a general inquiry and that anyone who desired might give evidence.

Hearings are expected to last several weeks. The railroads will take the first three or four days.

Willard outlined briefly the negotiations of the past and then launched into the reasons for four Eastern systems instead of five.

"The four systems seemed more logical to me than a greater number," he said, "because there are about 56,000 miles of railroad in the Eastern region and we found when we began to study the matter, that under any practicable solution of the problem, nearly half of the mileage seemed certain to be found ultimately in the systems of the Pennsylvania and New York Central companies that would leave about 26,000 miles to be merged into other companies.

Mileage Would Be Less.

"Obviously if this were put into more than two companies the mileage of each must be substantially less than the mileage of the New York Central or the Pennsylvania. * * *

He went on to say that while the executives did not consider mileage itself controlling, they did believe it important that each proposed system be given as nearly as possible the same opportunities to secure trafic and each system in a general way should reach the same markets and the same points of origin.

Mr. Willard then summarized the objects at which the executives were aiming. He said the systems should be strong enough to obtain funds for additions and betterments and equipment at the lowest possible cost; they should be efficient—"neither so large as to be unwieldy or unmanageable, nor too small to secure economies derived from large-scale operations," and they should be well balanced through having "a reasonable opportunity to originate well-diversified and dependable traffic."

Roosevelt Submits His Relief Program

Holds Leaders in Government and Business Have Failed to Show Way.

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—With the opening of the New York legislative session as his sounding board, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in his message today proclaimed a depression relief program to restore, with governmental aid, "The economic liberty of the individual."

Pointing out, on one hand, what he considers to be the mistakes of the national administration, he, on the other, outlined his procedure for bringing the country back to stable times.

The governor's words, in effect, were a national message because of his prominence as a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination this year.

Young Relatives Row Over Bodies of Killers

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Relatives were in conflict tonight over plans for the return and burial of the bodies of Harry and Jennings Young, Missouri desperadoes, who slew six peace officers at the Young farm home near here Saturday, and then killed themselves Tuesday in Houston, Tex., when cornered.

Greene County officers determined the bodies would be returned and said the $500 reward offered for each of the killers, dead or alive, would not be paid unless they are,

LOUIS JEFFRIES, SR., DIES DURING HEARING

Southern Railway Official Collapses After Quizzing Willard on Plan.

Louis E. Jeffries, sr., of 2202 Wyoming avenue northwest, vice president and general counsel of the Southern Railway, fell dead yesterday afternoon in the Willard Hotel during the hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission on Eastern railroad consolidation.

Mr. Jeffries had just completed cross-examination of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and returned to his chair where he collapsed. Efforts to revive him proved futile, and he was pronounced dead by Dr. N. J. Wilson, of Emergency Hospital. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Jeffries had appeared to oppose the efforts to take the Monon Railway away from the Southern System and assign it to the Baltimore & Ohio as a part of the consolidation plan.

Outstanding Rail Lawyer.

Members of the fire rescue squad applied artificial respiration, but after working over him for half an hour he was pronounced dead.

Mr. Jeffries, one of the outstanding railroad lawyers of the country, was born in Uniontown, Ala., February 14 1868. He was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1885 and the University of Virginia Law School in 1887. Taking up practice in Selma, Ala., he turned his attention to railroad cases and in 1912 was named general attorney for the Southern Railway. In 1918 he was promoted to the position of vice president and general counsel.

In addition to his connection with the Southern he was vice president and general counsel for the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway, the Alabama Great Southern Railroad, the New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad, and the Georgia Southern & Florida Railroad.

Riggs National Director.

He was a director of the Riggs National Bank of Washington and a member of the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs, of Washington, and the Westmoreland Club, of Richmond, Va.

He is survived by his widow, the former Virginia Caperton Hardie; two sons, Louis E. Jeffries, jr., assistant manager of the Dupont Circle branch of the Riggs National Bank, and Alexander Jeffries, now attending the Milford School in Connecticut; two daughters, Mrs. George Munce, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Josephine Cunningham, wife of Maj. Cunningham, of Philadelphia.

Following Mr. Jeffries' collapse Claude Porter, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, waited in the hotel until advised that the lawyer had been pronounced dead. Porter then announced an adjournment of the hearings until today.

A special train of the Southern Railway carrying the body will leave Alexandria today. Burial will be in Selma, Ala., tomorrow.

JAPANESE CAPTURE HULUTAO, PORT CITY

Move In Without Opposition and Send Troops North to Fight "Bandits."

(Associated Press.)

Hulutao, a Manchurian city deposed Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang planned to turn into the greatest port of his province, was occupied without resistance by the Japanese yesterday.

What effect the occupation would have on the future of the port remained uncertain, but influential Japanese urged that it be made one of the outlets for the far-flung transportation system over which Japan moves the products of the province.

"Antibandit" activity continued with the dispatch of two Japanese companies from Chinchow to Ichow, 35 miles north on the railway leading to Jehol. Peiping reported the Japanese intended to take Jehol, ancient Chinese capital, and now the center of one of the provinces of Manchuria.

Chinese in Tientsin declared Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang intended to ignore the ultimatum, reported to have been served by Japan, that he retire further into north China.

Uneasiness among the Chinese in Tientsin was increased by another show of Japanese military strength.

In Tokyo newspapers speculated on the possibility of a joint note from the United States, France and Great Britain, calling Japan's attention to obligations under the nine-power pact.

soldiers with leveled rifles. Consul Chamberlain alighted from the car and asked a plain clothes man for his card. He was menaced by the soldiers, who pointed rifles at him, and he protested. The plain clothes man aimed a blow at Consul Chamberlain, who then reentered the car. The plain clothes man followed him into the car, raining blows on Consul Chamberlain. One of the soldiers opened the car door on the other side and struck Consul Chamberlain in the face several times. They then ordered the car to proceed, which it did, returning to the consulate where Chamberlain got "first aid."

The offenders were apprehended and detained for questioning.

Secretary Stimson considers the entire situation which has been created by the incident so delicate that he excused himself from all questions relative to the Chamberlain happening, and spent his entire afternoon in reviewing precedents and policy with his closest advisors.

Incursions Call Anxiety.

The incursions which Japanese troops are reported as having made into China proper, have caused the United States, Great Britain and France considerable anxiety. Before the Great Wall, which was erected to protect the Chinese from the invasions of the Manchus in the seventeenth century, another and a greater menace to China with the most modern war machinery is lying in wait.

If Japanese troops sweep over this memorable fortification and penetrate into the rich lands of northern China, the gravest consequences are to be feared.

The League of Nations, which has issued several warnings of diminishing degrees of severity with regard to further advances by the Japanese military force, has decided to await the next meeting of the assembly, on January 25, before taking any other action. At that time it is presumed that the league will await the report of its commission of inquiry before making any move. This commission will probably include an American — Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who is now in Atlanta. The league will inform both China and Japan of the membership of the commission, which will include besides the American general, a Frenchman, an Englishman, a German and an Italian, and will ask the two governments to inform the league of their approval.

RED CROSS AT HELM AS FLOOD RESCUERS

Directing Mississippi Relief as Exhausted Convicts Threaten to Quit Dikes.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Representatives of the American Red Cross directed relief work here today as exhausted workers renewed their efforts to save the dikes against which the Tallahatchie River has waged a relentless onslaught for three weeks.

M. R. Krick, of West Virginia, director of disaster relief, arrived to take charge of the work in cooperation with Frank Grayson, of New Orleans, emergency relief officer, and Mrs. Mollie Hodges Nicholson, of Meridian, field representative.

An extensive survey of the situation throughout flood-swept Tallahatchie County was started following a conference with officials of the Glendora Red Cross Chapter.

Leaders feared they would be unable to hold the levee much longer in the face of the rise in the Tallahatchie, but went about their task of saving the dikes for at least three days longer.

Convicts who have worked desperately are in some cases on the point of revolt in this constant battle which has worn them down to the verge of collapse. They are working under direction of Superintendent J. W. Williamson of Parchman Prison.

Convicts were spread across a line of levees for 15 miles south of Glendora. West Tennessee streams continued to rise today, burdened by heavy rainfall of the last two days.

on taxicabs would work a general hardship on the public.

Meanwhile, the commission is preparing at least to abstain from prosecution of taxicab operators who fail to equip their cabs with meters by Sunday even though the District Supreme Court sustains the order and the utilities body fails to accede to the request of the House.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, has informed Justice Jesse C. Adkins that, if he upholds the order, the commission will refrain from prosecuting any delinquent taxicab operator, providing he can show that he is making a reasonable effort to obtain a meter.

A brief will be filed on the case by Mr. Roberts today in District Supreme Court, and Justice Adkins will hear final arguments tomorrow. He has already indicated that he does not consider the evidence offered in court enough to remand the case to the commission, and it is expected that he will dismiss the appeals of the City and the Bell Cab companies.

The House resolution, revised by Representative Byrns, after it had been drafted by Representative Blanton, made reference to the expected influx of visitors in 1932, and asked that they be given the benefit of the current low rates.

Earlier Mr. Blanton charged that the Public Utilities Commission order was the culmination of "the Brown Brothers," operators of the Black and White Taxicab Co., to drive the 20-cent cabs out of Washington.

He declared that exclusive use of the Union Station cab stand by one taxicab company is a "monopoly" that he intends to ask Congress to abolish.

WITNESSES BOLSTER HIGHTOWER'S DENIAL

Kentucky Miners' President Swears He Never Gave News Interview.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The William Hightower murder conspiracy trial sped onward today with rapid developments.

While the 77-year-old Evarts Mine Union president, with steady support of witnesses, bolstered his general denial of the Commonwealth's charges that he urged violence to "get the law" in Harlan County, a press association reporter was sworn in as a prosecution rebuttal witness. He was Foster Eaton, of Atlanta, United Press representative at the trial, and was called upon by R. L. Pope, of Knoxville, special prosecutor.

Eaton was excluded from the room while questions were asked the defendant about him. Later he was allowed to return, although he is on call as a witness and it was indicated he would be questioned about an alleged interview with Hightower.

This move followed Hightower's denial of the authorship of a crude cartoon, found in his clothing when he was arrested, depicting the May 5 battle at Evarts in which two deputy sheriffs, a comissary clerk at the Black Mountain Mine, and a miner were killed.

Judge Prewitt advised today that he would not attend the hearing before the State Court of Appeals at Frankfort tomorrow, at which the Knoxville, Tenn., News-Sentinel seeks writ of prohibiting him from barring its reporters from the trial. His two sons, both attorneys, will represent him. Newton D. Baker is expected to appear for the newspaper.

tions as antidrink leagues, spinning schools and boys' boarding schools.

All citizens were warned that, without trial, they might be sentenced to two years of hard labor for peaceful picketing, persuading anyone not to pay taxes, boycotting British goods or public servants, or contributing funds to the Nationalist cause.

Other ordinances, operative in all India, empowered the authorities to fine even children for Nationalist activities, the fines being collectable from their parents. Collective fines may be imposed on whole villages and towns.

The authorities may make arrests, raids and searches without warrants or order the imprisonment of persons without trial. They may control public utility services, posts, telegraphs, railroads and steamships, and exercise the right of confiscation of property and eminent domain.

The government may seize stocks of commodities from private citizens or corporations, compensating them at a price fixed by the government. The publication of false rumors may be punished by a year's imprisonment. Local authorities are empowered to demand the assistance of any citizen in keeping public order or in guarding life and property.

Toll Is Four Dead.

Almost every prominent leader of the all-India national congress has been arrested. Police took them in by the scores. Thus far in the conflict the casualties include four dead, two at Benares, and two at Allahaband. Police fired fourteen rounds on a defiant mob at Allahabad Tuesday, killing two persons and injuring 100. Numerous others were injured in a police lathi charge at Cawnpore. Small boys at Cawnpore stoned a policeman, injuring him so badly he had to go to a hospital.

In nationalist strongholds throughout India armed military and police forces paraded the streets to show their strength.

Banks, retail stores and British insurance and shipping companies suffered a serious slump in trade. Nearly all Hindu stores, schools and colleges remained closed in mourning for the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, the leader of the Nationalists.

Playing Watching Game.

Both the government and the Nationalists still played a watching game, waiting to see each other's plans before launching a heavy offensive.

Some observers expressed fear that if the government arrested all Nationalist leaders, as it has planned, the illiterate masses, left without guidance, might take matters into their own hands with violent results.

In his jail at Poona, Mahatma Gandhi continued to enjoy every courtesy, even being permitted contact with other Nationalist prisoners. The mahatma declined the usual prison fare, preferring his goat milk, dates and oranges.

How long Mr. Gandhi would be allowed to remain in his comfortable surroundings was problematical, as there were persistent rumors he and other leaders might be deported.

Wisconsin Senate Chides La Follette

Governor Is Taken to Task for Dictating Type of Relief Bill.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The breach between Gov. Philip F. La Follette and members of the conservative Republican faction in the Senate on the question of unemployment relief widened today with the placing in the Senate Journal of bitter denunciation of the executive by Senator Walter S. Goodland, of Racine.

A statement of 10,000 words, which accused Gov. La Follette of assuming the role of a dictator in telling the Senate what kind of a bill it must pass to obtain his signature and charged him with making false statements against the conservatives "beneath the dignity" of his office, was spread on the record by a vote of 22 to 8.

It took a place on the Journal with the governor's caustic message delivered yesterday.

'24 for Underwood' Sees Hoover on Shoals Plan

(Associated Press.)

The voice that boomed long and in vain "24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood" in the 1924 New York Democratic convention was heard yesterday in President Hoover's office.

Former Gov. M. W. Brandon of Alabama, accompanying fourteen other Alabamans to seek presidential support for the private operation of Muscle Shoals, did part of the talking for the group. Later he said the President was a courteous man and had listened attentively.

Outside Hand Seen In Finns' Wet Vote

Temperance Board Says French Leader Aided Dry Law's Defeat.

(Associated Press.)

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals yesterday formally reasserted that Finland's recent prohibition referendum result "was effected by outside pressure."

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the board, issued a lengthy formal rejoiner to a statement by L. Astrom, the Finnish Minister, in denial of an assertion by the board that the referendum had been influenced by outside pressure. Mr. Pickett yesterday listed "irrefutable facts," because of which he said the board must "adhere to our opinion."

"Only a few weeks before the referendum took place," Mr. Pickett enumerated, "the former French premier, Tardieu, now minister of agriculture, caused to be published in Finland an astonishing interview in which he said that he did not see how the Finns could accept such unreasonable legislation as the prohibition law, and further asserted that France, the European banker of the moment, would prefer to grant loans to those countries which buy her products, referring obviously to wine. This interview was widely reproduced in Finland and I am unable to see how, in the circumstances of the Finnish people and government, it could be held to be without influence."

Six Named in Kidnaping Bills.

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Louie Alterie, former Chicago gangster, arrested in Denver, and five men held here, were reported named by the grand jury today in four true bills charging membership in a Midwestern kidnaping ring.

C. H. RUDOLPH DIES IN HOME HERE AT 71

Former President of Board of Commissioners Expires After Long Illness.

Cuno H. Rudolph, once president of the Board of District Commissioners and for many years one of the city's leading citizens, died yesterday at his home in the Dresden Apartments.

Mr. Rudolph was 71 years old. For a considerable period he had been in failing health and had been forced to abandon many of his activities. He had been seriously ill only for a short time. He had been suffering from heart disease.

In addition to holding the position as president of the Board of Commissioners for more than two terms, he was prominently identified here as a banker, business man and the head of several charitable organizations.

A Republican, Mr. Rudolph long was active in politics, having served as treasurer of the local Republican State committee. Since 1896 he was a member of the executive committees of various inaugural committees.

Resigned in 1926.

Mr. Rudolph first served as president of the Board of Commissioners from 1910 to 1913 and was reappointed in 1921 by President Harding. President Coolidge renamed him and he was in the office until he resigned in October, 1926.

During his tenure of office under President Coolidge, the Board of Commissioners and the District government were under attack from several members of the House of Representatives. Although he had contemplated resigning before this, Mr. Rudolph postponed his retirement until the situation was cleared.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Rudolph, was educated in private schools and business college there. He came to Washington in 1899 and engaged in the hardware business and until 1906 was president of the hardware firm of Rudolph & West.

From 1901 to 1913 he was vice president of the National Metropolitan Bank. Later he became vice president of the Second National Bank, from which position he resigned when President Harding appointed him to the District Board. He was a director of the Second National Bank until the time of his death.

Resolutions of Regret.

The District Commissioners, at a special board meeting yesterday, adopted the following resolutions expressing regret at the death of Mr. Rudolph:

"Resolved the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, having learned with sincere regret that Cuno H. Rudolph, a former member and president of the Board of Commissioners, died this date, have ordered the flags on all District buildings to fly at half staff until after his funeral.

"Mr. Rudolph was twice appointed a Commissioner of the District of Columbia. He served as Commissioner and president of the Board of Commissioners from January 24, 1910, until July 19, 1913, and from March 15, 1921, until December 3, 1926. Mr. Rudolph was a native of Baltimore, moving to Washington in his early manhood, and gave a large portion of his life to public service. His fearless and sturdy character and sterling integrity were acknowledged by all with whom he came into contact. His loss as a citizen of Washington is a severe one.

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, in board meeting assembled, extend to his wife their heart-felt sympathy.

"A copy of this resolution will be spread on the minutes of the board and a copy furnished to Mrs. Cuno H Rudolph."

Opened Public Playground.

From the time he came to Washington until his death, Mr. Rudolph was vitally interested in the welfare of the Capital.

In 1901 he opened the first public playground and was chairman of the Associated Charities, which paid deficits in playground operations until Congress made the first appropriations more than 25 years ago.

Many years ago he called the meeting which first considered the advisability of forming a Community Chest here.

He was chairman of the District bicentennial commission, but resigned in September, 1930. The position is now occupied by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University.

A member of the Chamber of Commerce, he was also active in the Board of Trade, twice serving as president. For many years he was interested in Children's Hospital, and at the time of his death was chairman of its board.

Trustee of Howard.

His various activities included trusteeship of Howard University and Neighborhood House. He had charge of the first Mothers Day celebration here in 1911 and of the first community Christmas celebration in 1913.

He was a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. He had served as a member of the Safety First Association, the American Civic Association, the Sulgrave Institution, and the District Drama Guild.

He was a member of the National Press Club, University, Republican, Metropolitan, City and Chevy Chase Clubs, here. He was a member of the Blue Ridge Rod and Gun Club, and the Croaten Club of Virginia, and of the Gibson Island Club of Maryland.

In 1901 he married Amy Edna Merz, of Baltimore, who survives him. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Hanna Bobys Expires in Detroit

Was Widow of Capital Merchant; Will Be Buried Here.

Mrs. Hanna Bobys, widow of A. C. Bobys, prominent Washington merchant, died Monday in Detroit, Mich., following a brief illness, it was learned here yesterday. Mrs. Bobys was 60 years old.

A native of New York City, Mrs. Bobys was a resident of Washington for 45 years. Her husband, who died about four years ago, was at one time one of the city's leading merchants.

Mrs. Bobys is survived by four sons, Philip and Asa Bobys, of this city, and Maurice and Dr. Ernest E. Bobys, of Detroit; two daughters, Minna Bobys and Mrs. Frank Bonner, of Atlantic City, N. J.; one brother, A. L. Bernstein, of Detroit, and a sister, Mrs. M. Parsons, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from Danzansky's funeral home. Interment will be in Adas Israel Cemetery.

R. E. ELGEN MAY GET PUBLIC UTILITY POST

Valuation Engineer of I.C.C. Is Given Consideration by Hoover.

The vacancy on the District Public Utilities Commission due to the resignation of Harleigh H. Hartman may be filled by President Hoover's appointing Riley E. Elgen, valuation engineer of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is known the President is giving serious consideration to Mr. Elgen in making the selection. Although nearly 20 persons have been suggested for the post, it is believed the final White House choice will be the interstate commerce engineer.

Mr. Elgen's long experience in valuation work and as an engineer is thought to have qualified him preeminently for the position. The President's decision will be announced in the next 48 hours, it is thought.

The prospective member of the Utilities Commission has been a Washington resident for ten years. He is a native of Maryland. He lives at 2032 Klingle road northwest.

In his study of the aspirants, the President has insisted that they have the necessary experience and qualifications. He has consulted Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, as well as several District citizens in whose opinion he is known to have confidence.

Among the others receiving the President's consideration are Richard B. Keech, people's counsel for the commission; W. J. Clareman, chief investigator for the Federal Radio Commission; Ernest G. Walker, local real estate figure; Louis Dent and Maurice Judd, local attorneys.

GLASS BLAMES U. S. FOR BONDS LOSSES

European war debts to the United States.

Glass, who was Secretary of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson, recalled that the Senate had passed a resolution sponsored by him calling upon the State Department to desist from passing upon foreign loans.

Asserting the department had no legal right to such action, the Virginian said:

"The State Department is morally responsible for every dollar lost by Americans in foreign bonds and every indebtedness that will not be paid.

Clerk Passed on Worth.

"They had a clerk passing on them that didn't know any more about them than my cat.

"There isn't a scratch of the pen in the law or Constitution that authorizes the department to have anything to do with these loans."

Jones told the committee his division studies the financial conditions in foreign countries in great detail.

"On this particular Bolivian loan," he said, "I remember very distinctly talking with Arthur Young, or Mr. Frederick Livesey, over at the State Department, and telling them that we thought that Bolivia was borrowing too much in this market.

"There was a good deal of hemming and hawing, and the upshot of it was that we reluctantly gave our consent to it, for the reason that at that particular time our diplomatic relations with Latin America were a little upset.

U. S. Was Under Attack.

"Our Government was under considerable attack for its Nicaraguan policy, its Haitian policy and so forth. There was shortly to be held, I remember, a Pan-American conference. As I recall it, the State Department said it might result in embarrassment if we turned down this loan proposition."

Jones added it was rather unusual procedure, because his department had never before attempted to negative any foreign loan on the ground that the government was overborrowing. He said the information they had was not given to the bankers because they never asked for it.

He said he could not recall passing on the Peruvian loans, which are now in default to the amount of $75,000,000.

"In your opinion was South America-Latin America overborrowed?" Senator Johnson (Republican), California, asked.

"That is the impression that we had in the Department of Commerce in case of most of those countries."

"In the official family of the department it was recognized generally, was it not, that Latin-America was overborrowed?" Senator Johnson asked.

1928 Warning on Colombia.

"With some exception," Jones said. "We were inclined until about a year and a half ago, to think that certain countries were much better risks than others, and that possibly they could get through."

A report on Colombia in 1928 was inspired, Jones said, by a report from the commercial attache at Bogota, saying, "I think Colombia is going wild on borrowings. She has started too many railroads and too many highways, and she has not any idea where she is going to get all the money, except that the money is coming so readily now that they just think they can borrow ad infinitum."

BRIEF ILLNESS FATAL TO CAPT. M'ALLISTER

Former Engineer in Chief of Coast Guard Once Lived in Capital.

Capt. Charles A. McAllister, for many years engineer in chief of the United States Coast Guard, and at one time a resident of Washington, died yesterday in New York City, following a brief illness.

Capt. McAllister was born in Dorchester, N. J., in 1867. He was graduated from Cornell University with the degree of M. E. in 1887. For some time he served in the drafting rooms of several large shipbuilding companies, and was later employed in the Bureau of Steam Engineering, Navy Department.

In 1892, Capt. McAllister received a commission of ensign in the United States Coast Guard. He served as chief engineer of what were then the largest vessels in service, and during the Spanish-American War was appointed assistant engineer of the Navy on board the U. S. Flagship Philadelphia. He came to Washington in 1900 on special duty with the revenue cutter service.

Capt. McAllister was appointed by the Secretary of State as a delegate to the international conference on wireless telegraphy in Berlin, and was commissioner engineer in chief of the Coast Guard in 1905. He retired in 1919, holding the rank of captain.

Surviving Capt. McAllister are his wife, Mrs. Adelaide K. McAllister, and a daughter, Miss Clara McAllister of New York.

He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery, with full military honors, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

JULIUS ROSENWALD EXPIRES IN CHICAGO

endowments he created must be fully spent within 25 years after his death.

Went to Work at 15.

Born in Springfield, Ill., on August 12, 1862, Mr. Rosenwald founded his fortune in the clothing business. He was a clothier's clerk in Springfield at 15, owner of a Fifth avenue shop in New York City at 21, and a manufacturer in Chicago at 23.

In 1895 he purchased for $70,000 a half interest in the company through whose success he realized his greatest desire, to battle against racial and religious intolerance, and to educate and rehabilitate the poor of many lands.

His five children, warned of their father's approaching death, grouped themselves on December 26 into the "Rosenwald Family Association," to merge their own philanthropies along lines laid by their father.

Employed 40,000 Persons.

When R. W. Sears, of the mail order house, which was his largest customer, needed more money, Rosenwald bought a half interest in the firm. His $70,000 investment was destined to become $70,000,000 in a company of 40,000 employes, 300 retail stores, 50 large department stores and 13 factories.

Rosenwald aided his employes in financial emergencies. In the post-war deflation of 1921 he gave the company $5,000,000 of its stock which he owned, and pledged $20,000,000 of his personal fortune. When the 1929 "bull" stock market crashed he offered personal collateral to back the stock accounts of all the 40,000 employes who were unable to supply additional margin, to the amount of $1,600,000.

Although he donated $3,000,000 toward the Julius Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry here, he did not live to see it finished. He was too ill last summer to receive personally the Chicago Rotary Club's merit award as Chicago's leading citizen of 1930.

President Issues Tribute To Rosenwald's Greatness

(United Press.)

President Hoover, in a statement last night said the death of Julius Rosenwald had deprived Chicago and the Nation of "an outstanding citizen." His statement added:

"His business ability found expression in commercial achievements of great magnitude and importance. His patriotism was reflected both in his services in the cause of national defense during the war, and in his devotion to the upbuilding of the life of the community and the country in times of peace. One of his most conspicuous contributions to the public welfare was through his humanitarian activities. His warm-hearted human sympathy for all mankind resulted in munificent gifts for the advancement of public health, education, housing and the wide reach of social amelioration. He was a distinguished patron of the arts. The foundation which he created for the 'well-being of mankind' constitutes a monument to his vision, sympathy and generosity."

TRUE TO PRESIDENT, ADAMS SAYS ON BILL

Answers Suggestion He Quit if His Views Differ With Hoover's.

(Associated Press.)

With an expression of resentment and an avowal of loyalty to the President, Secretary Adams yesterday replied to a Democratic suggestion that he resign because his ideas on naval building were at variance with Mr. Hoover's disarmament proposals.

Before the House naval committee, Mr. Adams indorsed a bill to construct a fleet reaching the maximum allowed by treaties, and later, his voice slightly tremulous, he answered an assertion by Representative McClintic, of Oklahoma, that he should withdraw as head of the Navy Department.

Meanwhile, another Cabinet officer, Secretary Stimson of the State Department, was inducing the House foreign affairs committee to approve an appropriation of $450,000 to meet the expenses of the American delegation at next month's general disarmament conference in Geneva.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, was testifying in the crowded naval committee room when Representative McClintic, a Democrat, interposed an assertion that "if Secretary Adams is not in accord with the President's views on matters of vital interest to the Nation and the world * * * he should tender his resignation."

The Navy chief immediately rose to his feet. He walked toward the witness chair, asked if he could speak, and with his hands in his pockets and his voice uncertain, said:

"I am absolutely loyal to the President. I know of no difference between what I've testified here and the President's attitude. I resent the implication that I'm here in any disloyalty to the President of the United States."

Then he walked back to his chair and sat down, staring at the floor most of the time during the rest of the hearing.

Mr. McClintic had nothing further to say. But Chairman Vinson, whose $616,250,000 building bill was indorsed Tuesday by Mr. Adams, assured the Cabinet member there was nothing in the record to imply that he was disloyal.

The Oklahoma Democrat based his charge of lack of accord on the ground that since President Hoover had not been acquainted with details of the construction bill, Mr. Adams should not have approved it.

"It is the duty of all subordinates to acquaint the President with any policy they desire to see him put into effect," Mr. McClintic said.

Mr. Adams assured the committee the bill now was on its way to the President and the Budget Bureau.

The session also developed from Admiral Pratt the expression that unless the Navy were built up to treaty strength the country's safety might be endangered.

In his testimony before the foreign affairs committee, Secretary Stimson held that if the United States did not send a delegation to the Geneva Arms Conference, "the whole peace and stability of the world would receive a setback almost incalculable."

Barking Dog Calls Aid As Cave-In Buries Boy

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Buried alive for more than two hours beneath nearly a ton of earth, 16-year-old Dale Leffering, Fanning, Kans., farm youth, was rescued by members of his family attracted by the excited barking of a little dog.

The youth crawled into a cave yesterday after a rabbit on the farm of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Leffering. The earth gave way, catching Dale in a sitting position, his head forced down with his chin on his chest. This posture, relatives believe, made it possible for the boy to breathe while imprisoned under the heap of dirt.

Report on Mooney Is Not in U. S. Files

Mitchell Tells Senate It Was Prepared by Experts on Own Volition.

(Associated Press.)

Attorney General Mitchell reported to the Senate yesterday that a report prepared by experts for the Wickersham Commission on the Mooney-Billings case was not now available. Mitchell said the report had not been prepared at the commission's request but by the experts on their own responsibility and that consequently it was not among the reports in his custody.

He transmitted numerous other documents bearing on other features of the general Wickersham Commission inquiry into lawlessness, and said a copy of the Mooney-Billings report would be sent to the Senate as soon as one could be found.

When he learned the experts' report was not among the documents submitted, Senator Cutting said he would allow a reasonable time for them to be found and then if they were not produced "there would be only one thing to do—subpena the experts as witnesses."

"Lame Duck" Bill Adopted by Senate

Norris Resolution Is Sent to House by 63-7 Vote; Bingham Fight Fails.

(Associated Press.)

For the seventh time, the Senate yesterday adopted the Norris constitutional amendment resolution fixing new meeting times for Congress and abolishing "lame duck" sessions.

The resolution, sponsored by Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, was sent to the House by a vote of 63 to 7, after an unsuccessful fight by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, to provide for a limitation on every other annual session of Congress.

The Norris constitutional amendment provides that Congress meet annually on January 2. Each new Congress would take office on that date and the present system of an old Congress serving a short session after an election would be abolished. Terms of the President and Vice President would be started on January 15 instead of on March 4. The Democratic House leadership has favored the resolution for some time.

AMERICA MOBILIZING.

The fact that after being in existence for two months the National Credit Corporation has just called on the member banks for the first 10 per cent payments on their gold note subscriptions supports the contention of Secretary Mellon that it is frequently not the immediate necessity of money that restricts credit so much as fear that it might not be available when needed. In much larger measure the broader scope contemplated for the functioning of the National Reconstruction Finance Corporation will release credit to many times the volume of the actual demands upon its capital.

The call of the Comptroller of the Currency for statement of condition of banks as of December 31 was promptly answered by many institutions, including the largest New York banks. As was to be expected the position of banks and trust companies shows a decline in total resources and deposits as compared with the statements of a year ago, due to decreased loans and investments consequent upon reduced business generally. The banks, however, reveal a high degree of liquidity with strong reserves, giving evidence of massive strength despite the year of depression.

The organizers of the National Credit Corporation have demonstrated through the comparatively small demand upon their funds that the banks of the country are generally in stronger position than was supposed. Savings banks, particularly, are overflowing again with funds. Instead of savings being depleted for speculative purposes these accounts are being built up. Deposits of 146 mutual savings banks in New York State alone gained $421,000,000 last year, showing aggregate deposits of $5,275,000,000.

Business and personal incomes were reduced last year, but new financing, exclusive of municipal issues, was reduced 55 per cent over the demands of last year, amounting to only $2,253,968,000. This was a reduction of 64 per cent from 1929. Thus equitable adjustment of capital demands to existing condition has prevented a depletion of reserves. The prospect of improvement in the railroad situation also contributes to a better outlook. Not only is there hope of harmonious wage adjustment, but the Railroad Credit Corporation meets this month to arrange advances to needy roads from the revenue pool. Certificates of loan allotments will be issued that will be discountable at banks, so that urgent requirements will be met immediately.

The news of prompt and favorable action in Congress on the reconstruction finance measure had an immediately cheering effect upon business and the stock market. Nothing will so encourage a return to industrial activity now as evidence that the various measures proposed to strengthen credit and finance generally are to be considered promptly by both the Senate and House, so that the relief program can be in active effect before the opening of the spring season. American business can be restored now without waiting for the improvement of foreign trade.

America, by mobilizing its strength, can sweep away depression. It is already banishing the empty fear that has paralyzed action. The richest and most resourceful Nation in the world is leading all others out of adversity.

THE WHEAT DOLE.

Senator Capper's plan for distribution of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the Farm Board has aroused little enthusiasm. It passed the Senate without a record vote, and is moving rapidly toward a vote in the House. Congress will doubtless enact the measure as a gesture favoring the unemployed, but its alleged benefits are subject to many doubts and misgivings.

The Capper bill calls for distribution of this wheat by the Red Cross or similar organizations designated by the President. The Red Cross is willing to serve as distributor, but Chairman Payne wants it understood that the Red Cross is not sponsoring the bill. The hungry will be fed, whether the Government furnishes wheat or not. The Red Cross will have no difficulty in obtaining flour. Wheat is cheap. Bread for the unemployed is one of the smallest problems confronting charitable organizations.

Other problems with wide ramifications are involved in the Capper bill. Senator Borah contended, for example, that the Government ought not to take this opportunity of disposing of its surplus wheat when more than half of last year's crop is still held by farmers. The distribution of free wheat will undoubtedly complicate the problem of wheat growers who are unable to dispose of their holdings.

Furthermore, the Capper bill sets a precedent which will give strength to the demand for free distribution of the Government's cotton. Representative Fulmer, of South Carolina, has introduced a bill, authorizing the Farm Board to turn over its cotton to the needy. Why does not the Government also bestow its coffee supply, obtained from Brazil, upon the unemployed? A cup of coffee is the first thing requested by idle men who are "down and out." Apparently Uncle Sam is on the verge of establishing a general commissary business.

Under ordinary circumstances this method of handling an emergency would meet with vigorous opposition. But conditions being as they are, the public is inclined to regard the free distribution of wheat as a good psychological move. If the Government holds its wheat, storage and interest charges will soon eat up its value. No doubt Congress considers the distribution of surplus wheat to the unemployed as a partial escape from the quagmire created by the Farm Board.

A BRIDGE TO VENICE.

Before the end of this year Venice will have ceased to be an island city. Its isolation, which dates from medieval times, is to be terminated with the completion of the great bridge which will join it to the mainland. It will then be accessible by trolley cars, motors and by foot. The new bridge will be one of the longest in the world, measuring more than 2 miles in length. At a distance of 7 feet from the existing railroad bridge the new span will be connected to it by a cement pavement in such a way that the result will be a single bridge 103 feet wide. Thirty feet of this will be taken up by the railroad, 35 feet for motor cars, 23 feet for trolleys, 7 feet for pedestrians and 8 feet for bicycles.

The bridge will be linked to an automobile speedway which is now being built across northern Italy to Genoa. This road, passing through Milan, Bergamo, Brescia, Verona, Vicenza and Padua, is sure to become one of the most attractive highways in the world, connecting as it does so many places of artistic and historic interest. It will form a link between Italy's most important seaport and the jewel of the Adriatic.

The means of transportation in Venice itself, however, will not be altered by the new bridge. Gondolas will still be used within the city as well as the motorboats widely used, especially for commercial purposes. In order to facilitate the movement of traffic a new canal is being constructed through the city. This canal will leave old Venice almost intact, as it passes through waste areas that are occupied at present by backyards or gardens, so that virtually no demolition will be necessary in its construction. Only one building of artistic importance will have to be torn down to make way for the canal, the Moro Rocchi House, which will be rebuilt elsewhere. By taking a direct course and avoiding the old elbow turn of the Grand Canal the new waterway will halve the distance from the railroad station to St. Mark's Square.

Strong opposition was felt by many persons when the projects for the bridge and the new canal were first discussed. A number of organizations, including the Italian Academy, sent protests to the government. Personal intervention on the part of Premier Mussolini was necessary before the plan received universal acceptance. It was shown that the traffic problems in the city had become acute and that the canal would partly ease the difficulties. The course of the canal was laid through a comparatively uninteresting part of Venice, a section little known to visitors, so that there would be little artistic loss. The feeling is now general that the new waterway will be an asset to the city.

CANADIAN PROSPECTS.

Canadian bank officials believe that when international confidence improves Canada will be one of the first countries to benefit. The price level, after a precipitate decline lasting two years, now appears to be stabilizing itself. The disproportion between raw materials and manufactured goods, which resulted when prices of raw materials fell more rapidly than those of finished products, has become adjusted to a point where it is now possible to reconstruct trade on a lower price level with increased security.

Canadian industries have not been as severely affected as those in many other countries. Expansion in this line since the war has not been on the extensive scale of the industrial development in most of the Western nations, which have consequently suffered severe reverses, generally the result of overexpansion. A number of important factories have been established within the last year, especially in Ontario and Quebec, largely American owned, for the purpose of manufacturing goods for Canada and other British countries, which would benefit by the empire preferential tariff.

Despite the low prite of agricultural products the good crops of the past year have benefited the farmers in all but a small area suffering from drought. There was a notable increase in live stock production and splendid returns were made from specialized crops such as suger beets, tobacco and fruits. The low prices are believed to have stimulated both domestic consumption and exportation. Though there was a decline in forestry production, more than 2,000,000 tons of news print were exported. The absolute value of Canada's external trade is surpassed only by four nations, which have from four to twelve times her population. Per capita, her exports are the greatest of any country, and her former adverse balance of trade seems to have turned to a favorable balance in the last few months.

Her strong banking system is held one of the chief factors in Canada's successful weathering of the depression. During all of the difficult period not a single bank has failed, nor has any depositor lost a cent. Canada has but eleven banks, all of which have many branches throughout the country. In places where continuation of a branch would not have been possible without a heavy loss the branch was closed without risk to investors, giving no cause for alarm. In all, 200 branches were closed throughout Canada without casting any doubts on the solvency of the banks concerned. The result is that Canada has escaped serious financial disturbances. Her credit supply is abundant, her note circulation keeps pace with business needs and there is a general feeling of confidence in the banking institutions of the country.

CUNO H. RUDOLPH.

The District of Columbia mourns the death of Cuno H. Rudolph, whose services during three terms as Commissioner of the District were replete with benefits to the public. As president of the board Mr. Rudolph conducted District affairs with remarkable tact and skill, earning the praise of the President of the United States, Congress and all citizens. The testimonial dinner in his honor at the end of his long service was a notable demonstration of popular esteem.

Mr. Rudolph, a native of Baltimore, became a resident of Washington at the age of 29, and from that time until his death at 71 he gave generously of his time and ability to public affairs. His moderation, breadth of view and civic spirit constantly exerted a wholesome influence in District matters. The new and greater National Capital owes much of its beauty and dignity to the labors of Cuno H. Rudolph. The history of Washington will always contain a chapter devoted to him.

A sincere friend, a charming companion, an unselfish public servant and a sturdy builder of the Commonwealth is lost. But his good works are not lost, and his character and achievements remain as an example to Washingtonians. The District of Columbia should establish an enduring memorial to Cuno H. Rudolph.

A House leader, in referring to foreign debts, says, "Congress will be duped no longer." If we could only say as much for the country!

"THE BLUE DANUBE" WALTZ

From the Providence Journal.

A dispatch from Vienna announces that the world's most famous waltz, Johann Strauss' "The Beautiful Blue Danube," became a free composition on New Year's Day, available for universal use without royalty or copyright restrictions. The news will surprise most people, for the general impression has been that the lovely old waltz had been common property for years and years. In the last year or two we have heard it many times over the radio, and we can not recall ever hearing the familiar announcement, "With the special permission of the copyright owners."

All the same, it has been under the protection of a copyright all the time. It seems that the Austrian Parliament had to decide the other day whether to extend the copyright from 30 years to 50 years after the composer's death. Recent changes in the copyright law at Rome made this extension of the copyright period to a half century and it had been expected that the Austrian government would do the same, but popular sentiment in the country was against it.

One reason for this feeling and for the resulting action was that the copyright extension would tend to continue the existing tax on musical entertainments and would increase the cost of country dances in the Tyrol, where the yodelers congregate for melodic and terpischorean diversion. The opposition was also based on political reasons, but the determining motive, apparently, lay in the fact that the German copyright law covers only 30 years, and in general Austria likes to play along with Germany in such matters. The Austrian Parliament was also influenced by the fact that there are no near surviving relatives of Strauss and that his widow died in Vienna last year.

All of which puts us curiously in touch with a period which now seems remote and quaint. The melody of "The Blue Danube" has all the flavor of lavender and old lace. Probably it will be no more popular now that its copyright has ceased; as a matter of fact, its deserved esteem could hardly be greater than it has continuously been since Strauss wrote it. No more beautiful waltz composition has ever been produced.

It must be admitted that the election of Will Rogers in New Hampshire is another joker on the Republicans.

The best explanation of the result in New Hampshire seems to be that about 3,000 more than half the voters wanted a Democratic Representative.

Do the Japanese believe with Disraeli that "apologies only account for that which they do not alter," or are they just avoiding Milton's "apology too prompt?"

ACHIEVEMENT.

I think no trouble ever came my way
But what it left a joy for every ache.
When I against despair resistance make
And strive to hold the dreaded foe at bay,
Whatever be the outcome of the day,
Always a sense of pride I seem to take
From holding fast against the winds that shake,
And braving the conclusion, come what may.
Men find small pride in pleasure. Out of care
Danger and doubt and hazard heroes rise;
Men, after all, life's tasks are glad to share.
The brightest smiles are those which follow sighs.
Man's greatest glory, and I think 'tis God's,
Is having gained a victory 'gainst the odds.

By Keeping Peasants Poor the Baron Affords the Vices That Kill Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ALL of Nature's creatures must work to get a living. In the jungle, in the air and in the sea there is constant effort and never-ending vigilance in quest of food.

Yet in the ordinary course of events, all creatures are abundantly supplied. None is overlooked or neglected. Every need of every species—every appetite and craving—is awarded its need from the abundance of Nature's storehouse.

Is man, then, the only exception?

Is the highest and noblest of creatures the victim of some strange malice that denies him and him alone, the things most essential to his welfare and happiness?

You know that isn't true. It can't be true. Nature is consistent in all her ways.

But, you say, Nature gives her other creatures abundant food, sunshine, necessary shelter, sufficient protection from cold and heat, strength or fleetness to afford security—all, in fact, that is necessary to their contentment and their good—and yet some unkind providence denies man the wealth he covets.

What does that prove? What can it prove except that wealth is not the good it seems?

Is Nature ungenerous because she denies wings to the fox? Or does her failure to provide them indicate that wings would be a handicap to the fox himself, even while affording him an unfair advantage over the creatures that are his prey?

The very fact that few can acquire wealth should afford sufficient proof that neither the welfare nor the happiness of man requires it.

How, then, shall we explain the universal desire for riches? What explanation is needed except the fact that human perversity sweetens forbidden fruit? Men, like children, desire most the thing that is denied. If diamonds littered every highway, none would stoop to gather them.

Desire is no indication of need. All vices are the fruit of desire. Is gin essential to man's welfare because prohibition made it seem more desirable?

The things man needs are easily acquired. Unfettered by the greed of his kind—a greed known only to man of all earth's creatures—he could supply his wants by laboring no more than other creatures do.

It is a violation of nature that gives the few too much and the many too little, and, like other violations, it eventually does hurt to those it seems to benefit.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Curtis Proposes.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Vice President Curtis is not given to making pronouncements with reference to Government policies, but he has made a present exception. He comes out with a strong demand for a drastic reduction in governmental expenditures as suggested by President Hoover. He reasserts that many millions—now needed millions—of dollars could be saved by abolishing "duplication" in governmental bureaus and by stopping the printing of "unnecessary" public documents.

With reference to the latter specific item of Government expense it may be said that not one in one hundred thousand American citizens cares a fiddler's flip for a document on "The Genesis of the Doodlebug" or the thousand and one other unnecessary publications vomited from the Government printing presses.

Mr. Curtis said that if Congress and the executive departments would cooperate in the matter of duplications and useless and unnecessary printing of public documents it was more than probable that five hundred millions of dollars a year might be saved without impairing the Federal service.

Reducing Activities.

Huron (S. D.) Huronite.

It is to be hoped that so much of the time of the congressional session will not be taken in an attempt to work out ways to raise more revenue that no time will be left in which to give earnest consideration to ways and means to reduce needless expenditures. If one is to judge from the evident temper of the people, the time has come for all governing bodies to cease to render some of the services to the public which they have been doing. We have added greatly to service rendered to public in recent years. That is true of Federal, State, school and municipal bodies. At the insistence of well meaning people, we have felt free to add to our tax levies to support all sorts of governmental activities. Possibly all of them are good and have been justified in times of pletny. But governments must do exactly what individuals do—reduce their expenditures when money is not available.

A Real Job for Democrats.

Kansas City Times.

In his modestly restrained comments on the political situation, Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson administration, deals a telling blow to the opposition. Mr. Daniels says that "the party in power, by allowing 6,000,000 men to go without jobs, has, in the word of the Scriptures, been weighed and found wanting." So, of course, the Democratic party, if intrusted with power, would be ready to provide 6,000,000 jobs?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Cut Out Unnecessary Federal Expenditures and Salaries Need Not Be Reduced.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With regard to the proposed reduction in salaries of Federal employes, 70,000 in Washington receive a total of $170,000,000 a year. A 10 per cent cut will be $17,000,000. The Postoffice Department admits an annual loss of $17,000,000 or so in the operation of the air mail. Relieve the country of this burden and the proposed loss to employes in Washington would be balanced. Relieve the country of other unnecessary burdens and the other 400,000 Federal employes need not suffer any pay cut. W. B.

Drivers Should Be Examined as to Mental and Physical Fitness to Handle Automobile.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a driver of automobiles, I wish to offer the following factors which enter into automobile accidents.

My desire is to see everybody own a car and drive it himself, but under the following conditions:

He must know the traffic laws and laws relating to the automobile, not some of them, but all of them. Every so often, say every three years, he should show his knowledge of these laws through written and oral examinations.

He should demand uniform laws in all States throughout this country in regard to traffic and driving of automobiles. Then, whether he hails from the city or farm, plains or mountains, he will understand the traffic rules and not have to guess at them.

He should be examined by an "auto doctor" for his mental and physical fitness to see if he is in proper health to stand the strain of operating and driving an automobile.

Ignorance of the law should excuse no one.

If a driver applies for a driving position, he must know something about handling and caring for automobiles or trucks.

When the above is observed, fewer accidents will result. S. R.

Average Citizen Asks a Few Pertinent Questions of the Great.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: These are things that puzzle the average citizen:

Why the United States Chamber of Commerce, composed in part of our so-called captains of industry, can not advance any helpful suggestions to revive business.

Why local chambers of commerce throughout the land, who have always taken the side of big business, now cry out for help to save them from the chain stores.

Why the 531 representatives of the people can not devise laws that will protect the public from losses caused by bank failures.

Why the men recognized as world financial experts can not get together and devise a more flexible medium of exchange.

Why our legislators, looked upon by us little fellows as intellectual giants, have nothing of a constructive nature to offer, that will provide work for our unemployed citizens.

Why the continued harping on the reduced cost of living, as a justification for slashing of wages, when as a matter of fact in only a few essentials has there been any reduction.

Why a farmer who owns a bull calf can butcher it and sell the liver to the butcher for more than he can get for calf, liver and all, and at the same time meat bought from the butcher is so high as to be almost out of reach of the family of small means, unless they purchase the poorest cuts.

Why is the spread between the producer and the consumer so great?

Why and by what method of reasoning do the executives of big business expect to prosper by reducing wages and by so doing diminish the buying power of the masses?

Why a representative of the people, whom I have pictured in my mind as one of our most capable leaders and a man of presidential size, votes to grant a suspension of one year to foreign nations on their indebtedness of approximately $252,000,000 to us and then offers as a solution of our financial difficulties the slashing of salaries of Government workers. The gentleman to whom I refer has been termed a Progressive. God help the American people if our future is to be determined by such progressiveness!

AVERAGE CITIZEN.

Expresses Hope That Antivivisection Bill Will Become Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is understood that a bill for the exemption of dogs from vivisection in the District of Columbia has recently been introduced in the Senate by Lynn J. Frazier, senator from North Dakota, chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, and that this bill will shortly be introduced in the House.

I am writing to express my hearty support of this bill and trust that it will soon become a law. What the subject of vivisection most needs is publicity, and then it will cease to exist. The trouble is that the public does not know the cruelty that is going on behind closed doors in the false name of science. The day will come, not very far distant, when the world will look back on the crimes against helpless beings now being committed in the name of science the same as it now does on the days of the Inquisition and the burning at the stake in the name of religion.

It is time we put a stop to this cruel and useless practice and, instead, devote our attention to the prevention of disease by clean living.

CITIZENS TO DISCUSS GIVING UP TROLLEYS

Montgomery Group Monday Will Air Proposal for Wisconsin Avenue.

Proposed abandonment of the street car tracks on Wisconsin avenue and substitution of buses will be discussed at a meeting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation meeting Monday night in Bethesda School, it was announced yesterday by Frederic P. Lee, president, after a meeting of the executive and advisory committee of the federation.

The roads committee, headed by W. D. Lambert, has been collecting facts on the possibility of having the portion of Wisconsin avenue between the District Line and the Bank of Bethesda speedily improved.

The committee suggested that the federation ask for a public hearing on arguments for and against abandonment of the line. In connection with the request of the Rockville pike citizens that the federation sponsor a celebration of the opening of the widened and improved Rockville pike, it was pointed out by the publicity committee, of which O. M. Kile is chairman, that the celebration hardly could be considered a county-wide affair and inasmuch as it is a local celebration, suggested that the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce be asked to sponsor it.

Stephen James, chairman of the committee on public finance and budget, reported that his committee expects to meet later in the week and formulate a policy regarding the Mapes bill and its proposal to double tax Maryland residents who work in the District. The committee expects to ask sanction by the federation of its intention to appear before the Senate hearing on the bill and oppose these features.

Virginia Company Realigns Districts

Public Service Offices in Nearby Area Undergo Consolidation.

The northern district of the Virginia Public Service Co. has been reorganized with the Herndon and Leesburg divisions combined into one district and with M. T. Moore, former manager of the Leesburg division, as manager of the consolidation. This company supplies electric current to practically all homes in Northen Virginia.

The Herndon district in the past has included the major portion of Fairfax County and the towns of Ashburn and Sterling, in Loudoun County. It included the towns of Fairfax, Vienna and Herndon, the villages of Burke, Centerville, Merryfield, Oakton, Dunn Loring, Tysons Cross Roads, Annandale, Idylwood, Masonville, Forestville and the Maderia School property. This area contained more than 2,000 homes. The Leesburg district formerly included only the towns of Leesburg and Waterford and vicinity, serving only 700 homes.

The company employs about 20 persons in the new Leesburg division. Allen E. Rosenberger, former manager of the Herndon division, will remain in charge of the Herndon office, which will be maintained as in the past.

CAR TAG DRIVE SALE PLANNED IN VIRGINIA

Less Than Half of Number Allotted to Arlington Have Been Bought.

Virginia State police will inaugurate a license plate drive on January 16, requiring all automobile owners to display their 1932 tags. Less than half of the tags allotted to Arlington County have been sold.

The drive will affect all cars kept in the county at night for 30 days or more. Tags may be obtained at the office of Sheriff Howard B. Field at the county courthouse between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. except Saturdays, when his office closes at 1 p. m.

Determined that two large sign boards erected at Wilson boulevard and Glebe road in Ballston shall not remain, Thomas Crack, of Ballston, has placed the matter in the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas.

Plans for continuing the canvass of Arlington County to raise unemployment funds and to assist the county committee on unemployment will feature the meeting of the Arlington County Welfare Board tomorrow night at the courthouse.

Meeting today at 1 o'clock at Clarendon, the committee on plans for the annual banquet of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will be completed.

Charity Constitution Adoption Postponed

Maintaining the constitution of the proposed county-wide charitable organization in Prince Georges County should not be adopted until all communities have reported on their needs, those behind the movement adjourned their meeting last night without taking definite action.

The committee appointed to draft a tentative constitution reported, and will make their recommendations again at a meeting the date of which was not announced. It will be called by Dr. B. P. Robinson, as the head of the organizers. Last night's meeting, held in Hyattsville, was attended by representatives of the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce, the Hyattsville town council, Colmar Manor, Cottage City, Brentwood, Cheverly and College Park. France's Minister Of War Succumbs

Andre Maginot's Death Comes After Doctors' Optimism.

Paris, Thursday, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Andre Maginot, minister of war, died early this morning at a clinic where he had undergone treatment for typhoid fever with hepatic complications.

The end came unexpectedly at 2 a. m. for the 54-year-old cabinet member. His condition during the day had shown marked improvement and physicians had expected his robust constitution to enable him to recover.

His death was regarded in political circles as making a reorganization of the French cabinet inevitable. The morning newspapers, notably Le Matin, indicated that Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's health would preclude him from attending the international conferences scheduled for the near future.

HERNDON SEEKS LAW TO AID SCHOOL LOAN

$7,000 Needed to Complete New Building; Assembly Will Get Bill.

Necessary legislation which will permit Herndon, Va., to secure from the State literary fund a loan of $7,000 for the completion of its new gymnasium and home economics building, will be sought by the Fairfax County school board, At its monthly meeting yesterday a resolution was adopted asking State Senator John W. Rust and Delegate Edmund H. Allen to secure the passage of such a measure during the coming session of the State Assembly.

Recently the State Board of Education turned down a loan for the new building after it had been approved by the Herndon town school board and council and the county board of supervisors and the county school board.

Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr, of Fairfax County, has ruled that the county supervisors can not legally approve a loan for school construction, when it can not make a levy to repay such loans. Under the State law only the Herndon town council has the right to make such levy, and the county board is powerless to make any appropriation for the loan.

School Trustee Frederick W. Robinson, of Herndon, stated that the citizens of the town would not object to transferring title to the county, provided they will only be taxed on a par with other districts in the county.

Members of the county school board advised the Herndon school board to attempt to borrow the $7,000 for the town from private sources rather than from the State literary fund.

The four Herndon school buildings represent an investment of more than $100,000, exclusive of the value of its 8-acre tract of ground, and is the largest school center in Northern Virginia, with the exception of the Washington-Lee High School in Arlington County.

Board of Chamber Asks Council of 9

Alexandria Body Against Ward Basis in Bill of Delegate Birrell.

The board of directors of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce have adopted a resolution favoring the increase in the membership of the city council from five to nine members, but being opposed to the representation being strictly from wards. The bill proposed by State Delegate J. Fred Birrell for presentation at the forthcoming session of the State Legislature, is for an increase to nine members, six from each of the wards in the city and three at large.

The resolution adopted by the board of directors will be presented at the general membership meeting next Monday night, and if adopted by that body Delegate Birrell will be requested to change his proposed bill to conform.

The chamber has through its efforts effected the reduction by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of the rental charge of 25 cents per month for the French, or hand, telephone, to a flat installation charge of $4 or $4.50 if paid in installments. This new rate is effective January 1.

A special meeting of the board of directors will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon when matters in reference to the Bicentennial celebration will be discussed.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

LOCATIONS at Beltsville and Meadows, Md., have been decided upon for the two new radio research laboratories in connection with the U. S. Bureau of Standards authorized at the last session of Congress. At Beltsville the station is to be located on land set aside through the courtesy of the Department of Agriculture. Negotiations have been commenced for the purchase of the necessary land at Meadows.

Radio received official recognition in Congress when the name of the House merchant marine and fisheries committee, under whose jurisdiction it comes, was changed to House merchant marine, radio and fisheries committee. Radio was originally assigned to this committee because it was first used as wireless on ships.

It looked as if Edgar L. Bill, well known at the radio commission, and formerly director of Station WLS, Chicago, had been lost in the shuffle. Far from it. He now comes forth smiling—with his own station, WMBD, at Peoria, Ill.—the latest addition to the Columbia network.

ROY S. DURSTINE, a national advertising authority, is quoted in Broadcasting Magazine as saying:

"There should be a greater realization on the part of the advertiser that in his spoken selling over the air he must be just as courteous, just as persuasive and just as considerate as he is in the personal selling by his salesmen. When he trains a house-to-house salesman, he makes sure that the training includes an agreeable approach, a convincing argument, and a knowledge of the fact that many a sale is ruined because a welcome is overstayed.

Microphones for WRC and WJSV will be set up to catch the address of Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox at the Jackson Day Dinner in the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow night. More than a thousand leaders of the party will be present, among them many aspirants to the party's nomination. The toastmaster will be Claude Bowers, keynote speaker of the 1928 convention, who will be introduced by John J. Raskob.

About 8:45 p. m., recently one of the radio equipped police cruisers at Youngstown, Ohio, was directed to a certain house to tell a man there to call at the local bakery for a loaf of bread.

THE increasing number of women announcers on commercial programs is said to be a bid for the attention of women listeners. The line of reasoning used by the broadcasters is that a woman announcer receives more attention from women than a man announcer does.

Si Grogan asks:

"Why don't Amos and Andy wake up to the fact that there is no one who is more particular about what should be worn after six o'clock than the boy of color?"

Today's activities in the building trades of New York, Washington, Syracuse, Cleveland and Chicago will be described during the first of a series of weekly broadcasts entitled, "America at Work," over WRC, beginning tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock. Gilbert K. Gable, radio commentator, will act as master of ceremonies. From a key banquet of civic and industrial leaders in the Waldorf-Astoria speakers from the five cities will be heard. They will quote statistics showing the amount of building in their respective communities.

The Cities Service Concert Orchestra, the Cavaliers and Jessica Dragonette, soprano, will be heard during the program. The broadcast will occupy part of the regular Cities Service period.

THE entire Columbia network will be linked together at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning for an address by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, on "Protection—Not Murder," one of a series of talks being sponsored and arranged by the National Antiweapon Association. Senator Capper is a member of the advisory council of that organization.

An explanation of how the Metropolitan Opera Company finally yielded to radio, after fighting it off for years, is seen in the fact that Paul D. Cravath, recently elected chairman of the Metropolitan, is a member of the boards of directors of the National Broadcasting Co. and the Radio Corporation of America.

Other rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, it is reasoned that Mr. Cravath may also be a factor in the eventual removal of the Metropolitan Opera to Radio City.

Dr. Estelle Ford Warner will be guest speaker for the New York Medical Society program to be broadcast this morning at 11:30 o'clock. Introduced by Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, wife of the Surgeon General of the United States, Dr. Warner will speak on "The Business Woman," offering suggestions for the preservation of health in the exacting life of business. The program will originate in the studios of WMAL.

ENTRANTS in the George Washington essay contest now being conducted by The Washington Post may find inspiration in the daily talks by Charles Colfax Long over WRC at 12:15 p. m. The general subject is "The Real George Washington," and Mr. Long's auditors are enlightened on some phase of his life by each talk.

George Rector, of Broadway's famous Rector's, for 20 years one of the most glamorous restaurants along the Great White Way, is going to tell the radio audience how to prepare dishes that used to delight Enrico Caruso, Sarah Bernhardt and "Diamond Jim" Brady.

The restaurateur will be heard daily on the A. & P. food program over WRC at 9:45 a. m.

ENTERING its fifth year of broadcasting tonight, the Maxwell House Ensemble will offer a special program, featuring Lanny Ross (WJZ network, 9:30 o'clock) * * * A special concert by the U. S. Jane Interprets the MODE

White georgette with gold lame and black velvet appliqued design make these extremely lovely tea or dinner "intime" pyjamas. (A New York model.)

New York, Jan. 6.

I JUST have to tell you something about complexions today, because it has become so very important to use one's cosmetics in relation to the wardrobe and one's personal coloring—for which the wardrobe is naturally selected—that make-up and complexions are really a part of fashions.

The tendency toward more natural make-up and away from the "vamp" type of exaggerated make-up that I told you about, oh, months ago, is now definitely important. Notice it yourself—look around you at the very elegant and chic women in the smartest gatherings, especially in the daytime. Of course, it never has been considered good taste to use very much make-up in broad daylight, but what I mean now is to notice that at indoor gatherings in the afternoon, under electric lights even, the complexions of the loveliest and most elegant women seem to be much more girlish and fresh and natural than they were last season. Are they actually? No; it's a matter of make-up, my deahs!

Of course, it's a matter of care, too, and a break for the lucky ones with naturally lovely skins. But those who haven't such lovely skins simply have to get serious about acquiring them, and all of us have to practice a bit with cosmetics in order to achieve the appearance that natural and lovely complexions have without cosmetics.

Lips and eyes come in for the first don't. Don't paint your lipstick on any more, if your ultra lovely—it's quite demode to show your lipstick strokes! Don't, of course, use a greasy lipstick, which will only spread and be mussy and not stay on an hour. But apply one of the newest lip tints, as they are called, and then, to start the day, at least, and in the privacy of your boudoir, rub it into the lips with your finger tip or cleansing tissue.

And for your eyes, heavy eye shadows are demode, too. Use eye shadows, and use the least bit of eye brilliant over the eye shadows—brilliantine, which you apply sparingly to your eyebrows as well, the very last thing. And no more spiked eyelashes, my deah! Those are as out-of-date as wide sashes around the hips and knee-length skirts. Now you dye your natural eyelashes a darker shade, touching just the edges of them. And your eyebrows the same.

And one has to admit that there is something very, very youthifying about this new style in make-up, something, too, quite, quite in keeping with the new type of fashions. Do experiment a bit and use your cosmetics to accentuate and flatter nature—and watch your friends exclaim "how young you are looking these days!"

* * * *

And another way to look young without seeming to be trying to do so is to use what the French so aptly call "lingerie touches" on all your dark frocks. These lingerie touches are what we call collars and cuffs, but they include little odd placements of lace or white stuffs which are really not collars and cuffs. If you would like to know more about how to make these delightful and youthifying "lingerie touches" out of the remnants that you can pick up so very cheaply this month at all the department stores, and some other clever things to do with remnants besides, send a stamped, addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet entitled "What to Do With Remnants."

* * * *

And speaking of remnants, realize that remnants could have trimmed the lovely white georgette pyjamas I've sketched for you today—remnants of black velvet and gold lame. How would you like to wear an outfit like this next time hubby had some one important out to dinner? No; it wouldn't shock him, because by now even the most staid and respectable business men have heard all about hostess pyjamas and are just hoping that they'll see 'em somewhere other than in store windows or in fashion magazines or on the silver sheet!

Au revoir!

Culbertson on Contract

"PSYCHING" TO LOSE.

MR. OSWALD JACOBY, who was Mr. Sidney S. Lenz's partner in the Battle of 1001 Bridge Hands, is probably the leading apostle of psychic bidding in the City of New York, if not in the United States. In fact, so much does he love this type of bidding that he can scarcely be said to belong to that class who "can take their psychics or let them alone." Psychic bids with him are interesting, regardless of the result. Here is a hand played in the match, in which Mr. Jacoby made a Third Hand Opening Psychic bid and eventually found himself playing the hand at a game contract with the result that he was defeated two tricks. Were it not for the psychic Opening bid, the hand would have been passed out.

The Bidding.

1—The ruling and irrepressible passion.
2—Rather strong bidding by Mr. Lenz, but Mr. Jacoby's psychic tactics were quite mystifying.
3—Anxious to apply the brakes.
4—Again strong bidding. However, the justification is that East and West could have made three spades, losing two hearts, one spade and one diamond. The bidding, therefore, is justified as a safety measure, once the Opening psychic bid was made.

In the play, Mr. Jacoby was defeated two tricks undoubled for a penalty loss of 100 points. It is, of course, self-evident that if he had passed the hand must be passed out.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Many so-called "psychic" bids are losing bids, because, if honestly made, partner is as much misled by them as opponents.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

THE SELFISH WOMAN.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Five years ago my brother, a boy of 17, fell in love with my girl chum. She was a sweet kid, a few years his junior. During these years they have gone steady with the aim of some day marrying her. He has worked day and night—yes, 16 hours a day—given up friendships, pleasures—everything to make that aim a reality. Now he is 22. Astonishingly he, today, loves her more than ever.

They are engaged, plan being married in another year or so. But in the last few months she has changed. She cries, "I want to have a good time like other girls." It is only natural. She is young and pretty. But she wants to have a "good time," be engaged to my brother and have him pay exclusive attention to her while she goes to dances and theaters, and he stays at home working.

It hurts, because my brother is such a clean chap. Since 16 he has taken care of my brother and me—gave up school—his ambitions. At 22 he is a boyish-oldman.

He has offered to the girl her freedom to have her fling, but she cries passionately that she loves him. Then if she wants to be engaged, don't you think she can give up something for him? She is insanely jealous of my brother. Objects if he even calls for me after work. But still she goes out, and declares she is young and, therefore, has a good excuse.

My bother is young, too; he devotes all his spare time to her. It is for her that he is working. Don't you think she is a bit selfish in her attitude or, as my brother mourns, is it because she doesn't care for him now that she is older? Is he expecting too much when he asks her to give up these dances—treat him fairly?

Please, Miss McDonald, answer this soon. I haven't seen my brother smile for weeks. He is worried sick. Thank you very much. H. R.

If your brother is wise and intelligent, he will accept the fact that the girl is the selfish, grasping type that sees man only as a provider and never as another human being. When such a woman marries she keeps the man constantly worried and in debt, and with his nose to the grinding stone till death releases him. It makes no difference whether 16 or 60, these women are the driver types. They bury their husbands and begin on their sons-in-law. They are never satisfied and never happy. Their wants are endless and their demands unreasonable. They make life a burden to all around them.

Do not think that these statements are based upon the mere fact that the girl wants a good time, but upon the terms with which she makes her demand. He must act the engaged man. But she must be free. Why? Because she is the octopus type—the grasper. And at 40 she will be hard as nails, while her husband will be worn and weary and too meek to call his soul his own.

At the moment your brother may feel crushed, but in the years to come he will be thankful that fate spared him. This is his first but not his last love. When once he accepts facts as facts, half his battle will be over, and he will begin to note the charms about him, and make a happier choice. It is all part of the program from the cradle to the grave, life's varied experience, each step the preparation for the step ahead; some more difficult than others, but all necessary to reach the goal. Accept that philosophy and anything is bearable. So help your brother to accept it, thinking of the future rather than the present, the goal rather than the weary steps that bring us to it. It is the only way.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. and from 9:40 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The energizing influences in force on January 7 make this a good day for outdoor activities and strenuous effort, especially of a physical nature. Those in love have grounds for optimism, for the astrological indications point to marriage and unexpected news of an unsettling character.

The child born on this January 7 will be witty, bright and amiable, a type of whom teachers and parents would like to make a "pet." It will be bubbling over with vitality and energy, and things will never lag when it is around. It will have decided mechanical ability.

Born January 7, you are a natural diplomat, simply oozing with tact. Your powers of arbitration are remarkable, and you consequently evade trouble, even when you have laid yourself out for it. You are a natural and graceful dodger of responsibilities. Your peculiar gift is to bring peace and harmony in your circle, and to radiate a calm and inspiring atmosphere. Necessity may force you to be a doer, but you never feel a spontaneous urge to work. You do not even take an interest in the more active sports or games—reading a book is more in your line.

You seldom lose your temper, have frayed nerves, or feel perturbed. You are never impatient for your tomorrow, and this enables you to completely live and enjoy your present. You are very adaptable, and can soon make yourself feel at home with new people or in new places. You could be a very clever person, but you indifferently display your talents and "just getting by" satisfies you. It is no effort for you to learn, but you are not a thorough student.

You are affectionate and capable of deep love. You should try, however, to overcome a too ready tendency to become jealous. You like to completely possess those whom you love, and you cannot bear to even share your friendships.

Successful people born January 7:

Israel Putnam, Revolutionary general.

Millard Fillmore, thirteenth President of United States.

T. De Witt Talmage, Presbyterian clergyman.

Louise Imogen Guiney, author and poet.

Charles H. Davis, artist.

Mary E. Wilkins, author.

The Touch of White

This season it's what you wear with your black frock that makes it a matter of importance! We echo Paris in saying "white . . . by all means," with a black flat crepe that is particularly becoming to a woman. The full three-quarter sleeves and well-cut surplice neckline are outlined with a double fold of white chiffon, appliqued with sheerest embroidered organdy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE ROSS AWARD FUND.

SCIENTISTS are trying to raise a fund known as the Ross Award Fund. While Dr. Ross is an Englishman, his discoveries were of such importance to America that the scientists of this country are lending a hand.

Dr. Ronald Ross is a British physician who was attached to the British army stationed in India. It was an accepted fact that malaria was more important, not only to the army, but also to the Indian people, than was plague or cholera. These latter diseases struck first here and then there—they came and went. At times they caused most dramatic epidemics. Malaria was omnipresent. Like the mills of the gods, it ground always and exceedingly fine. It was the dripping water that finally wore away the granite because it was ceaselessly and eternally at it.

A Frenchman, Laveran, working in North Africa, discovered the parasite that caused malaria, but other links had to be discovered before the disease could be tied to man. Dr. Ross proved that mosquitoes infected man with malaria. Most of the things we have done since then have been aimed at breaking this as the weakest link in the chain.

Antimosquito measures made it possible to build the Panama Canal, to grow cotton without great hazard in the Yazoo delta in Mississippi, and in various other sections of the country, and also made possible the present great fruit industry in the tropics.

Dr. Ross' demonstrations of the relation of malaria to mosquitoes laid the foundation for other work aimed at insect-borne diseases. The old speculation about mosquitoes and yellow fever, first advanced by Nott, was taken off the shelf and polished up by Findley and handed to Gorgas and Reed when we landed in Cuba. This old theory, properly proved, was the basis of what we have since succeeded in doing in the warmer parts of the world in the last 30 years. It was the basis of the freedom from plague of the troops engaged in the World War.

Great industrial enterprises, as well as great wars, have been free from some of their hazards because of the scientific work done by Dr. Ross. His book on malaria put the control of that disease on a mathematical basis. And a trend in this direction, with respect to other infective diseases, is a quality of the latest advances in scientific epidemiology in contrast to the wasteful, unnecessary, expensive, and sometimes harmful rule of thumb epidemiology of the old days.

Dr. Ross gave his discoveries to the world without profit to himself. He is now crippled with deforming arthritis, unable to walk, confined to a wheel chair, old and without means enough to rest from his labors.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

I HAVE had a fern for nearly four years. It has suddenly begun to turn yellow. Shall I transplant it?

MARJORIE T. W.

Yes, and at the time of repotting cut away any fronds that are unusually brown. Florists divide their ferns into three pieces when they transplant them.

Mrs. Howard V.—Crotons are tropical plants and require a great deal of sun, heat, water and fresh air. These plants would never stand a temperature of 36 degrees.

Please tell me the best soil for a leopard plant, also something of the amount of water it should have. The leaves of the plant are now quite small. Formerly they were as large as a teacup.

MRS. THOMAS T. T.

The farfugium, or leopard plant, requires a rich soil, a moderate amount of sun and a great deal of water. I am sure your plant is developing small leaves because it is not getting sufficient sun or water. Lack of fresh air will sometimes cause this plant to lose its leaves.

I have plants which I call baby elephant's ears. The leaves on some of the varieties are most beautifully mottled, some are delicately striped with rose pink. These plants were given to me last spring. I put them on my porch in summer and apparently they died. I kept watering them and, to my surprise, they sprouted. I now have them in a fernery. What kind of soil do they require? How often should they be watered?

MRS. LEONARD F. W.

Your plants are evidently caladiums, which are listed as conservatory plants. Being of a tropical nature, they demand a warm, moist temperature. These plants do quite well outdoors in summer if planted in a shady place. Caladiums are usually started in moss with bottom heat; they are rather hard to start in the house, where it is difficult to control both heat and moisture. I am sure you have your plants in too sunny a place. They require a rich soil and water every day.

Please tell me how to care for a snowball bush. The leaves drop off one by one and, while new ones appear, the bush never seems to get any larger. It was lovely the first season, but last year it was entirely stripped of its beauty.

DOT C. P.

The snowball bush requires a sunny situation and a rich, well-drained soil. In early spring incorporate some bone meal with the soil in which it is growing and spray the bush with lime-sulphur before growth starts, as the dropping off of the leaves indicates the presence of blight.

3 WORKS PRESENTED BY OPERA COMPANY

Cosmopolitan Group Scores Success in Presentations; "Faust" Is Tonight.

Three operatic presentations widely differing in theme were given by the Cosmopolitan Grand Opera Company of New York yesterday at the National Theater when the visiting opera stars sang Gounod's lovely "Romeo et Juliette" as a matinee performance; Humperdinck's delightful "Hansel and Gretel" and the tragic "Pagliacci," of Leoncavallo, in Italian.

The performances were given under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene. Jacques Samossoud conducted.

A trio of women stars, Dorothy Dickerson, as Juliet; Georgia Standing, as Hansel, and Grace Anthony, as Nedda, shared the honors of the day.

In "Pagliacci" the opera company had the advantage of presenting an old favorite to last night's audience. Grace Anthony was a bewitching Nedda and Ivan Ivantzoff again scored after his triumph of Tuesday night in "Il Trovatore" in the role of Canio. The other parts in "Pagliacci," Tonio, by Mario Valle, Belle Beppe, sung by Francesco Curci, and Silvio, enacted by Vladimir Dubinsky, were a splendid support.

In the opera "Hansel and Gretel," sung in German, the fantasy was well protrayed by Georgia Standing as Hansel, while Helen Eisler acted the role of Gretel well. Alice Haeseler as The Witch scored immediately. Anna Criona, The Sandman, and then The Dewman came in to her own in her brief role, and Vladimir Dubinsky was a splendid Peter.

"Romie and Juliet" kept the audience interested and the beauty of the presentation was much commented upon.

Dorothy Dickerson won new laurels as Juliet. Playing opposite her was Ralph Errolle a youthful and slender Romeo. Amund Sjovik made a hit as Friar Laurent.

Miss Dickerson won an ovation in her singing of the famous waltz songs and in her duets carried her full part.

Tonight's opera will be the classic "Faust," by Gounod. Jacques Samossoud will again conduct, and Alexander Kurganoff will take the part of Faust, with Gladys Mathew as Marguerite. E. E. P.

Rotarian From Japan Honored by Club Here

Washington Rotarians had as guest of honor at their Willard luncheon yesterday Takaski Komatsu, of the Rotary Club of Tokyo, Japan. Mr. Komatsu said that Japanese efforts in Manchuria have as their aim the restoration of economic stability to everybody's benefit and he expressed the hope that America would understand Japanese motives in the present trying times.

Mr. Komatsu brought to the Washington Club the official greetings of the members of the Tokyo Rotary Club. He told of the extension of the Rotary idea in Japan.

MRS. HOOVER HEARS STARS AT MUSICALE

Grace Moore and Myra Hess Draw Acclaim at Hotel Mayflower.

Miss Grace Moore, Metropolitan prima donna soprano, and Myra Hess, leading woman pianist, were the magnets drawing a distinguished audience to Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical morning at Hotel Mayflower yesterday morning. Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, was in the audience.

Miss Hess, who opened the program, displayed the lovely tonal effects which have become associated with her playing in Scarlatti's "Two Little Sonatas" and a "Minuet and Toccata." Miss Hess is a consummate artist, and yesterday's audience appreciated the treat in hearing her. She played several other groups, including Chopin Mazurkas, which further increased the good opinion of her virtuosity.

Miss Moore, who has an attractive personality as well as a voice of real charm, scored again and again in her part of the program. The audience was pleased with her singing of the aria, "Connais-tu-le-Pays," from the opera "Mignon," and also enjoyed her presentation of the "Air de Lia," from the opera "L'Enfant Prodigue," by Debussy.

Equal interest was taken in the English group with which the program was closed. Miss Moore sang the three numbers, Purcell's "There's Not a Swain on the Plain," Charles T. Griffe's "By a Lonely Forest Pathway" and Cadman's "Joy," with appealing beauty.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

TICKETS for the entire week of the engagement of Eugene O'Neil's trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," which arrives at the National Theater on Monday next, go on sale at the boxoffice of the theater this morning.

Mail orders have been pouring in for the past two weeks and a record advance sale is expected to be compiled before the play opens Monday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

The three plays comprising the trilogy, of course, are "Homecoming," "The Hunted" and "The Haunted," consisting in all of 14 acts and 6 scenes. "Homecoming" is presented prior to the 7 o'clock dinner intermission, and "The Hunted" and "The Haunted" beginning at 8. Judith Anderson, Florence Reed, Walter Abel, Crane Wilbur, Thurston Hall and some 20 others will be seen in the play here.

Rosa Low, the brilliant young Roumanian soprano who achieved so outstanding a success as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra last Sunday afternoon, will again be the soloist with the orchestra, under the conductorship of Hans Kindler, in its fourth symphony concert in Constitution Hall this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. Miss Low, in addition to a group of four songs, will repeat the aria "Zeffiretti Lusinghieri" from Mozart's "Idomeneo."

Mr. Kindler will open his program with a number which the orchestra will play for the first time in Washington, the Polonaise from Alexander Glazounov's "Chopiniana," opus 46.

So closely does Minister Eugene Kevin Scallan, of the Union of South Africa, keep in touch with matters pertaining to his country that on Tuesday evening he attended a performance at the Fox Theater for the particular purpose of viewing a subject in the current Fox Movietone News depicting the efforts being made to rid his country of the dreaded scourge of the tsetse fly. There was also a shot of a rugby game in Africa.

So diverted were he and his party that the upshot of the whole thing was that they remained for the entire bill, featuring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Delicious," on the screen, and George E. Stone, screen character actor, appearing in person on the stage.

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, world famous coloratura soprano, will make her only concert appearance in Washington this season at Constitution Hall on Saturday night of the current week at 8:30 o'clock. Mme. Galli-Curci will be assisted by Homer Samuels, pianist, and Raymond Williams, flutist.

Mme. Galli-Curci's program will open with two groups of five songs each. After the intermission Mr. Samuels will play a group of three Debussy compositions. The final number of the evening will be the Shadow Song from "Dinorah," with flute accompaniment by Mr. Williams.

Mr. Campbell B. Casad was the distinguished harbinger of a new musical production who enlivened a gloomy afternoon yesterday. Mr. Casad, one of the veteran publicists of both stage and screen, is in Washington as advance emissary of Vincent Youmans' musicalization of "Smilin' Through," the play that served Jane Cowl so admirably for so long and subsequently was made as a silent film under the direction of Sidney Franklin with Norma Talmadge the pictured star. It is about to be produced again in dialogue form by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a vehicle for Norma Shearer, with Sidney Franklin one more directing this time the currently prevalent Norma.

The Youmans score, of which Mr. Casad has much to say in praise, will require the services of an orchestra of 40, under the direction of Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld. "Smilin' Through" will be the attraction at the National Theater, beginning Monday, January 18.

The next local concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra, Leopold Stokowski, conductor, will be given in Constitution Hall on next Tuesday evening, January 12.

The appearance of Samuel Dushkin as violinist with the orchestra will mark the return of a brilliant artist after a three-year absence in Europe, where his virtuosity was signally honored.

"The Tinker," Fred Eastman's appealing three-act play which tells the story of a tinker who mends everything "from clocks to hearts," will be presented by the Park View Players tomorrow evening at Park View Community Center, Warder street and Otis place northwest.

Kirk Mears will be seen in the title role, supported by a competent cast of local players.

Martha Graham, whom dance critics generally acknowledge as America's foremost dancer, comes to Washington Friday afternoon, January 22, at 4:40 o'clock at the National Theater. She will bring her own group of 15 dancers to the Capital at this time for debut.

Because of the austerity and dramatic intensity of many of her dances, the American girl often gives her audience the impression of being a very serious and complex sort of person. However, several Washington dancers who know her well say that she is really exceedingly charming, at all times revealing a gracious manner that has almost child-like simplicity.

Her much cherished pet is a Dachshund puppy named Maed'l. Conversations, even interviews, are often interrupted while Miss Graham throws a ball down the shining lengths of the studio floor and the puppy scrambles after it. Maed'l is a warm-blooded little animal and, during rehearsals, sits in a low chair wrapped up in a shawl. From this point of vantage, she watches the dancers contentedly.

Oddly enough, Louis Horst, Miss Graham's accompanist, a composer who has written works especially for her as well as for other leading dancers in New York, also has a Dachshund as a pet. Max, who appears in Kennel Club books as Graf Rupert aus dem Waldensee, is the pride of Mr. Horst's heart and is said to be a dog of exceptional character.

If it is the film bills for next week that you have been waiting to hear about, here they are: Columbia, Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery in Noel Coward's "Private Lives;" Earle, Barbara Stanwyck and Adolphe Menjou in "Forbidden" and Henry Bergman headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Sylvia Sidney in "Ladies of the Big House" and Loew's "High Hat Revue;" Fox, Jobyna Howland, Louise Dresser, Minna Gombel and William Collier, sr., in "Stepping Sisters," Fanchon & Marco Idea and Ruth Etting in person; RKO-Keith's, Leo Carrillo and Constance Cummings in "The Guilty Generation," and Belle Bennett headlining the vaudeville bill; Metropolitan, Ben Lyon and Rose Hobart in "Compromised."

When "Mourning Becomes Electra" opens at the National Monday afternoon, it will have no competitive attraction playing against it. The Belasco is dark next week.

And don't forget that RKO-Keith's and the Metropolitan revert to Saturday openings this week.

Now let me see, where might I have mislaid that last one of my New Year's resolutions? I mean the one about cussing when no last line comes to mind!

An Open Letter to Washingtonians

A similarity of names has led some of my guests to believe that I am also operating an Inn in Washington. To correct this misunderstanding, I wish to inform the public that:

I have no interest in or connection with any establishment other than Olney Inn (twelve miles out Georgia Avenue extended), Olney, Maryland.

Please do not confuse Olney Inn at Olney Farm, Olney, Maryland, with any other Inn of a similar name located elsewhere. You will always find the highest and best standards of food, service and home atmosphere and a hearty welcome at Olney Inn (twelve miles out Georgia Avenue extended), Olney, Maryland.

anniversary of the birth of the Father of our Country. It is most natural that happy khaki-clad Scouts should take pride in honoring the memory of America's First Scout.

"Many a Scout of today is thrilled at the thought of a camping trip in the midst of a spring shower. He likes to imagine that he is on such a trip, not merely for fun but—like Washington—for the serious purpose of surveying land. He likes to think of the hardships and difficulties of 184 years ago.

"No matches. No convenient canned food. No snug waterproofed sleeping bags. When Washington went on the first long surveying trip into the valley of the Shenandoah, his tents were ruthlessly blown down by the violent winds. Somehow the elements are no respecter of boys of great promise, even though they be destined to be President of the United States.

"Records show us that Washington as a boy and young man participated in these bits of scoutcraft: Signalling, tracking, use of knife and hatchet, fire building, cooking, thrift, use of compass safety, scout-like living, swimming, hiking, mapping, handicraft, judging and nature knowledge.

"There really isn't much that Scouts do today that Washington didn't do—and do remarkably well.

"No wonder that the love of Washington looms large in the program of a Scout. I can easily understand why Scouts are enthusiastic about the George Washington essay contest."

Two more essay writers sent in their essays yesterday. They are Leonard Thomas, 607 E street southeast, age 14, who attends the Hine Junior High School; Thomas Holden, age 11, Holy Comforter School, who lives at 1110 East Capitol street.

Rules governing the contest and a list of prizes to be awarded will be found today on page 8.

40 Snowbound in Wake Of Western Blizzard

Chicago, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—The first severe storm of the new year swept northeastward tonight after dumping snow over most of Minnesota, Michigan, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

Another blizzard in the high Sierras of California left about 40 persons snowbound. Many were reported suffering from frozen feet. Physicians and nurses struggled behind snow plows to reach them.

Edwin Hahn Is Elected To National Shoe Board

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—A. H. Guetting, of Philadelphia, was re-elected president of the National Shoe Retailers Association today. Harry C. McLaughlin, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was chosen second vice president and other officers were reelected. New directors include Edwin Hahn, of Washington, and J. Gordon McNeil, of Boston.

FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

25,000,000 WOMEN PREPARING TO TAKE PART IN CELEBRATION.

Through the channels of women's organizations the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission is reaching 25,000,000 women in this countryy who will participate in the Nation-wide celebration this year of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Already fourteen units of national organizations have been reached through 42,330 presidents and other officials.

In addition to this, the commission plans to contact directly 50,000 executives of local units of national organizations. Before the huge, nine-month commemoration exercises begin on February 22, the commission expects to have the active cooperation of every women's society—patriotic, fraternal and social—in America.

The activities of the National Bicentennial Commission have been enthusiastically received and indorsed by women's organizations throughout the entire country. Most of the national organizations of women have responded with resolutions of cooperation and are now working out special programs adapted to their groups and communities.

The first official recognition of Washington's Birthday was 138 years ago, while he was President of the United States, according to the division of information and publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. February 22 of that year marked his sixty-fourth birthday, and the Congress of the United States was in session at Philadelphia. A motion was entertained that Congress adjourn for a half hour to pay its respects to the President. After considerable discussion the motion was carried.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

FURTHER EXPRESSIONS OF A CREED FOR THE NEW YEAR.

I BELIEVE that the present crisis, serious as it may be, is not to be compared with those endured by our forefathers with high courage and flaming faith; and that a little reflection on their fortitude will make the average "depression victim" of today ashamed of himself.

I believe the brightest feature of the outlook for the new year is the rapidly mounting evidence that the American public is definitely abandoning the notion that the chief ingredients of prosperity are a silk hat, a magic wand and a book on legerdemain.

I believe an encouraging sign for 1932 is that Mr. Gus Q. Citizen has about abandoned the idea that the return of prosperity can be accomplished through smoking-car discussions, locker-room platitudes and an exchange of philosophies by fat gentlemen in the easy chairs of our most select clubs.

I believe the main trouble with America has been that it has been leading a life too conducive to hardening of the arteries and not sufficiently conducive to hardening of the muscles.

I BELIEVE THAT SEVEN OUT OF TEN MODERN-DAY AMERICANS NEVER HAD AS MUCH AS THEY NOW PROFESS TO HAVE LOST.

I believe it a highly encouraging sign that business men have discarded the two-hours-for-lunch program, are now picking stenographers for ability rather than for looks, and are attending to some office details formerly left to the office idiot.

I believe the average man having spent the last two years backseat driving, is now determined to get out and help take his turn at the wheel over the rough spots and poorly marked intersections.

I believe the rank and file of Americans are finished with a diet of optimistic statements, conference pap and daily bedtime stories, and are now facing the facts and ceasing to shudder at the mention of hard work.

I BELIEVE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE AVERAGE MAN TO HAVE HIS FEET AS COLD AS THEY SEEM TO BE FROM HIS CONVERSATION.

I believe 1932 will prove that the American citizen has not forgotten how to break a headlock, struggle out of a half-nelson, swim up stream, hit from the shoulder and come up smiling after taking a few on the chin.

• • • •

I BELIEVE that during the new year people will devote much less time to placing the responsibility for the slump and much more to pulling out of it.

I believe that from now on the smaller business man is to get a break, and that the little fellow will be conceded a right to live.

I BELIEVE THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE LEARNED TO DISTINGUISH BETWEEN LEADERSHIP AND A MERE ABILITY TO STRUT SITTING DOWN.

I believe that American business, large, small and medium, has definitely discovered it can't be operated with a putting iron in one hand and a cocktail shaker in the other.

G. W. QUINTET TRIUMPHS OVER MARINES, 39 TO 27

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

As Jim Londos makes ready to go through his nightly calisthenics in Washington tonight with Sandor Szabo as the party of the second part, another voice is heard on the wrestling front and the tone and conviction of its bleating indicates that the speaker is something of a champion in his own right.

I have reference to Henri Deglane, late of Montreal, but now of Boston, whose personal representative, Dr. Edward B. Sullivan, has given to art one of the most exquisite, lithographed, multicolored, glazed-paper biographies ever to grace the public relations offices of the prize fight or wrestling industries.

Titled as the story of "The World's Heavyweight Wrestling Champion," the folder comes to this department in the interest of a wrestling tour that will take Deglane from coast to coast and back again in defense of his "title." What will happen or under what distinction Monsieur Deglane will travel if he should lose his title in midcontinent, his personal representative neglects to say, but it is safe to presume that Monsieur Deglane will have no difficulty in reaching home base again.

Before taking further note of Monsieur Deglane's biography and in the interest of clarity, this department wishes to interpose that the title owned by the eminent Deglane is one of the three major wrestling championship titles now in circulation.

Jim Londos is the possessor of the New York and Pennsylvania and Washington, D. C., world's championship gained through his victory over Dick Shikat, who at one time was recognized as the champion of two States.

The second title is owned by Strangler Lewis and is closely allied with the title claimed by Monsieur Deglane inasmuch as the Strangler refused to yield the diadem after he was disqualified for biting Monsieur Deglane in a bout at Montreal.

Now to get down to the marginal notes of the title situation, the National Boxing Association, which has done several backward dives in its decision to maintain jurisdiction over the wrestlers, recognized Deglane as the champion, while Lewis still continues to operate in outlaw circuits which are vastly more powerful than the N. B. A. provinces. Thus, in reality, Londos owns one of the titles outright while Deglane and Lewis maintain a joint ownership of another crown.

Of course it was impossible to include Deglane as a candidate for the Sullivan Memorial award made by the A. A. U. annually to the outstanding athlete who by his performance and by his example and influence as an amateur and as a man has done the most in the past year to advance the cause of sportsmanship. But according to his biography, Deglane could qualify on every point except his amateurism.

We learn that "Henri Deglane, the new world's heavyweight champion, is making himself a popular title holder. Clean and sportsmanlike, he has never been guilty of unfairness on or off the mat. He has no trick holds, but is a wrestler of the orthodox type. He can be as rough as the next one, but his forte is straight wrestling.

"In Deglane's face there is none of the ponderous expression that is usual with the men-mountains of his profession, no glower that bespeaks heavy mental duty. His face lights quickly, his smile is cheerful and ungrudging, his response is ready even though he is still struggling with the American tongue.

"Two years ago when he landed from Cherbourg, he could speak no English. Today he has picked up many of our English idioms. 'Yes, O. K., certainly,' he says frequently.

There is his personal representative's picture of Deglane. In the near future he is expected to add "Oh Yeah? and Scram" to his vocabulary and his need of the American tongue will be one-fourth complete.

We learn through Monsieur Deglane's biography that he is the champion because "The Proof of the Pudding is in the Eating" as is emblazoned in 36-point scarlet type across the top of the folder at hand. But Dr. Sullivan has outlined an interesting pedigree of the title he claims for Monsieur Deglane by lineal descent. His process of deduction follows:

There never was any question about FRANK GOTCH being world's heavyweight champion from 1908 to 1914 when he turned the title over to CHARLIE CUTLER, who lost to JOE STECHER in 1915. The Nebraskan lost to EARL CADDOCK in 1917. Caddock went to war and on return to the United States dropped crown to JOE STECHER in 1920, who in same year lost to STRANGLER LEWIS, who, before the season elapsed fell before STANLAUS ZBYSZKO. The same year (1920) STRANGLER LEWIS won a return bout with the Pole, holding the title until 1925, when he was beaten by WAYNE MUNN, who the same year lost to STANISLAUS ZBYSZKO. Before the season ended JOE STECHER won the title from Zbyszko which he held until 1928 when he was beaten by STRANGLER LEWIS, who the next year lost to GUS SONNENBERG. Lewis tried six times to win title back from SONnehberg but failed. Finally in 1930 SONNENBERG lost to ED DON GEORGE. In 1931 George lost to STRANGLER LEWIS and three weeks later Lewis lost to HENRI DEGLANE.

Bout for Title Is Won by Miami

Walker and Schmeling to Sign Today for Feb. 26 Fight.

Garden Retains Call on Services of Two in Future Bouts.

By DIXON STEWART.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Any hopes Chicago, Los Angeles and New York entertained, of playing host to the world's heavyweight championship match between Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker were dispated today with the announcement that contracts calling for the bout at Miami, Fla., February 26, will be signed tomorrow.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the German champion, and Jack Kearns, representing Walker, already have agreed on all details of distance, site and finances, and the actual public signing, scheduled at Madison Square Garden for 3 p. m. tomorrow, is a mere formality.

The bout will be over the 15-round route at Madison Square Garden arena in Miami and will be promoted jointly by the Madison Square Garden corporations of Florida and Illinois. Schmeling will receive 45 per cent of the net receipts with Walker accepting 17½ per cent. George Blake, of Los Angeles, is expected to be named as referee.

Garden Retains Call On Future Services.

In signing, both fighters will grant Madison Square Garden exclusive call on their services for a second championship bout in June. Walker names no opponents for the June bout, while Schmeling's agreement specifies Jack Dempsey as an opponent with Jack Sharkey as an alternate if Dempsey refuses to post a forfeit to guarantee that he will fight this year.

"Championship" fights are barred under the Florida law but Madison Square Garden has received assurances from Lou MacReynolds, Miami's one-man athletic commisison, that there will be no interference with the bout. The Garden previously staged an American championship bout between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami in 1929, and with Schmeling still refused recognition as champion in New York, MacReynolds believes there will be no opposition to the Schmeling-Walker match.

Jacobs Blocks Move For New York Bout.

A last-minute attempt by Garden officials and Jack Kearns to switch the match to New York was blocked by Schmeling's manager, who insisted that the bout be staged in Miami.

"Regardless of what any one says, I am confident we will draw more than $300,000 at Miami," said Jacobs. "I'm not even considering New York. In the first place, neither Max nor I is licensed here. Anyway, the Garden, seating only 18,000, is too small for a championship fight."

Broadway Theatricals Vic Five's Sunday Foe

Visitors in two of their first three engagements against outstanding road teams of Philadelphia and Baltimore, Vic Sport Shop semipros yesterday lined up two more cage attractions for their home base at Silver Spring Armory.

Sunday afternoon the Vicmen will face the Broadway Theatricals, one of the leading independent professional teams of Philadelphia, while Manager Gauzza also announced he had booked the Passiac Pioneers, of Passaic, N. J., for February 14 here.

Unlike the Philadelphia Pros and Hawaiian Aloha Stars, recent foes of Joe Sweeney and his teammates, the Theatrical players are equally familiar with the intercollegiate and two-handed professional basket ball rules. Consequently, they will be at no disadvantage in Sunday's clash. According to the Broadway management, the visiting five boasts victories this season over both the Pros and Alohas, which fact indicates a stirring session for Gauzza's former collegiate lads.

Bill Tilden Beats Richards Handily

6,000 See "Big Bill" Win Pro Tennis Feature in Garden, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Still disdaining to "pull his punches" for the benefit of the audience, Bill Tilden administered another crushing defeat tonight to Vincent Richards, his foremost rival for world professional tennis honors.

A fashionable audience of 6,000 that included such notables as Max Schmeling and Babe Ruth saw the tall Philadelphia tennis master turn his more youthful opponent back by scores of 6—2, 6—3, 6—1 in a ruthless exhibition of power.

It had been felt that Big Bill, if for no other reason than his flair for the dramatic, might ease up a little and let his former doubles partner make a fight of it this time, but any one who thought that, was mistaken. He squelched Richards even more convincingly than in their first combat as professionals here last winter.

Richards did his best, played some brilliant tennis, but he was no match for the old master.

5 NATIONALS SHIPPED TO LOOKOUTS

Masters, Phelps, Powell, McLeod and Travis Farmed.

JOE ENGEL, who sometimes scouts for the Nationals when he gets tired of "presidenting" for the Chattanooga Club, is in Washington in the interests of his Lookouts. His system seems to be to dig up baseball talent for the Washington Club and then to try to coax President Clark Griffith to turn over these discoveries to his Southern Association outfit.

And that Joe is quite a debater is indicated by the fact that he grabbed a bunch of players from the Nats yesterday. Already, Engel had weaned away Outfielder Johnny Gill, First-baseman Harley Boss and Pitcher Ad Liska and he landed five more yesterday. In this latter group are Pitcher Walter Masters, Infielders Cecil Travis and Jimmy McLeod, Catcher Gordon Phelps and Outfielder Alvin (Jake) Powell.

None of this octet figured to help the Washington Club any. With the two Joes—Kuhel and Judge—still available, Harley Boss was not needed for first base consideration, while the only others who have been listed promising, Outfielder Johnny Gill and Pitcher Walter Masters, need seasoning and will get it at Chattanooga.

Players Promising But Not Needed.

Liska's arm was practically useless all season and there is doubt that he will be able to pitch again, while all of the others except Cecil Travis, have been tried here and found wanting. With respect to Travis, he is only a youngster in his teens, and, although being tapped as having marked natural ability, is still considered at least two years away from the majors.

Phelps has given every indication of being a slugger, but during the two seasons he has been away from the Nats he has been shifted back and forth from the outfield to behind the bat, so much that he can not field either position in big league style. If he ever reaches the majors, it will have to be as a catcher and Engel has promised to work him regularly in this position during the coming season in the hope of having him ready to make a real bid here by the time 1933 rolls around.

Walter Haight Named School Series Scorer

Walter Haight, of The Post staff, official scorer of the high basket ball series for four years, was named to assume the post once more yesterday afternoon by John Paul Collins, director of athletics in the high schools.

The series begins tomorrow afternoon at Tech, when Tech meets Business and Central tackles Western. The first game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

G. W. Freshmen Beat Business Five, 29-18

Business High's diminutive basket ball team stacked up against the young giants of the George Washington University Freshmen yesterday, and once more the old theory that a good big thing can beat a good little one was borne out. G. W.'s cubs won, 29 to 18.

Unleashing the full force of its power Business made a battle of it in the first half, after which only a single basket separated the teams, the Colonials leading, 11-9.

The bulk of G. W. began to tell once the third period was under way. Three young giants, Weingartner, Gleason and Noonan, began finding the cords almost at will and opened a safe margin between the clubs.

Eastern High Coaches Are Shuffled

Kelley, Guyon to Exchange Basket Ball, Football Duties.

New Order Effective Next September, Says Hart.

COACHING duties at Eastern High School involving the football and basket ball teams were shuffled yesterday by Principal Charles A. Hart, although the announcement involves no change in the personnel of the coaches at the school.

Charles ("Chief") Guyon, physical director of the school, will take over the coaching of the football team, formerly under the direction of Mike Kelley, while the basket ball squad, formerly coached by Guyon, will be given unto the direction of Kelley. The change will not go into effect until the start of the 1932 school year, in September.

The new program will not affect track and baseball, which, for the last several years, have been coached by Kelley and Guyon, respectively, Principal Hart said.

Mr. Hart would give no reasons for the change except to say that the new arrangement was mutually satisfactory to both coaches.

Both Successful Coaches.

Both Kelley and Guyon have been eminently successful as coaches of the four major sports at the school. Kelley, who took up his duties at Eastern in 1928, after transferring from Central, has won the interscholastic championship with his track team for the last three years.

Kelley's best football team at Eastern finished as runner-up to Tech in 1930. While at Central, Kelley's football team in 1927 defeated Tech, the last team to accomplish that feat in the local interscholastic series.

Until the coming of Kelley in 1928, Guyon was in charge of football, baseball and basket ball at Eastern since 1921. He gained national fame in his own playing days as a member of Jim Thorpe's renowned Carlisle Indians of two decades ago.

Baseball Record Brilliant.

Under Guyon's tutelage the Eastern High baseball teams of the last four years have been well-nigh invincible, winning the series title during that period with the distinction of never having lost a game. Eastern teams now have eighteen consecutive baseball series victories to their credit. Guyon's basket ball teams have won three titles outright and last season gained the championship jointly with Central High.

Dreyfuss Comfortable After Gland Operation

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club, tonight was reported resting comfortably at Mount Sinai Hospital after an operation for a glandular infection.

He underwent the operation this morning and several hours later was reported by his son-in-law, W. E. Benswanger, treasurer of the Pittsburgh club, as having rallied encouragingly.

Dreyfuss will be 67 years old in February. He has been actively associated with baseball since 1889.

Two league tilts are carded for tonight at Bolling Field. At 8 p. m. Patent Office and Naval Hospital will make their first appearance in circuit play, while an hour later will see Census and Department of Interior settling matters.

Books or Nets?

ELLSWORTH VINES.

VINES ASKED TO STICK TO STUDIES

Star Urged to Reconsider Plan to Play in Hawaii.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines' announcement that Davis Cup tennis and university studies didn't mix and that he was dropping the studies today brought quick action from the United States Lawn Tennis Association urging him to reconsider.

Vines, national champion, announced his intention in Los Angeles yesterday of quitting the University of Southern California in favor of tournament tennis in Hawaii to prepare himself for a berth on America's Davis Cup squad.

Today Holcombe Ward, chairman of the U. S. L. T. A.'s, Davis Cup committee sent Vines a telegram urging him to stay in school.

Services Not Needed Until May 15.

"The committee considers your educational obligation paramount in that you should not permit tennis play to interfere in any way with continuation of your studies," Ward wired him. He pointed out that no players would be required for Davis Cup play before May 15 "by which date your scholastic work should be near completion."

The Vines incident recalls the situation in 1928 when the Davis Cup committee took an entirely different view and called several school and university players to a training camp at Augusta, Ga., in March. Their action brought swift denunciation from Dr. Sumner Hardy, then president of the California Tennis Association.

Dr. Hardy charged that in calling the boys from their studies the Davis Cup committee was making "tennis bums," whom he described as tennis amateurs making a good living traveling from tournament to tournament with no income but "expense" money.

Dr. Hardy's ire had been aroused when John Hope Doeg, then a student at Stanford University, received his telegraphic order to report at camp.

Allison, Bell, Lott Others Called to Play.

Among other students called to the colors were Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell, of the University of Texas; George M. Lott, jr., of Chicago, and W. F. (Junior) Coen, then a Kansas City schoolboy.

It was the first year after the United States had lost the cup to France and every effort was being made to put together an American combination capable of bringing it back.

Last year Doeg refused to try out for the Davis Cup Team on the ground it would interfere with his newspaper business at Newark, N. J.

D. C. School Tossers In Two Games Today

Business is bad in the local scholastic basket ball world today, only two contests being carded to appear. In the more important game Strayer's makes its Washington Collegiate Conference debut, meeting Columbus at Central High School tonight.

This afternoon Eastern, joint holder of the high school crown, takes on a foe of unknown caliber in the National Training School Five, at Eastern.

G. U. Defeats Baltimore, 31 to 23

Hilltop Five Displays Form in Second Half to Win.

King and Connors in Star Roles; Score 13-11 at Half.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

RETURNING to the basket ball wars after the Christmas holidays, Georgetown University inflicted a 31-23 defeat on Baltimore University in a loosely played game at Tech High School last night.

Neither team offered much in the way of good basket ball. Baltimore's ability to pot shots from midcourt in the first period enabled it to hold the Blue and Gray to a 13-11 score at the intermission, but in the second half the Hilltoppers' attack began to function and they gradually drew away from their smaller foes.

Baltimore drew first blood when Kramer sank one from close in shortly after the start of the fray. Connors evened matters for the home team with a long shot, but the visitors again forged to the front when Reamer came through with his first basket of the game. Goals by Carolan and Murphy again put Georgetown in front and it was never headed.

Tom Reamer and Tony Doyle, Baltimore guards, took the lead in their team's attack in the first half. Time and again they worked the ball into Georgetown territory, but the inability of "Heck" Long, substitute center, to make connections on intended block plays cost his team many potential points.

Georgetown's attack during the first half consisted of working the ball in close to its opponent's goal, and then either tossing the leather away or allowing it to slip through overanxious hands. But with the start of the second half the situation was radically different. The team retained possession of the ball throughout the greater part of this period and exhibited a 100 per cent better passing attack. The play of Dick King, "Bones" Bonniwell, and Joe O'Neill was outstanding. Reamer kept the Baltimoreans in the race with his shooting and found a mate of equal ability in Bebe Kramer. Patsy Chandler also played well for Baltimore.

Day's 73 Card Tops Miami Golf Field

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Win Day, youthful Chicago golfer, shot a 38-35-73 over the Miami Country Club course today to lead the field of qualifiers thus far in the Mid-Winter Amateur Golf Tournament.

His score was the target for six veteran amateur players who followed him, but the defending champion, title holder by virtue of his 40-hole victory over Lee Chase, Buffalo, appeared unperturbed.

Billy Dear, Montclair, N. J., scored 74 in his qualifying round.

Hitchcock Is Lone Ten-Goal Poloist

Veteran Star Survives as Ratings Take Downward Trend.

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Thomas Hitchcock, a member of America's "Big Four" for the last ten years, remained the country's premier polo player as the United States Polo Association announced a wholesale reduction in handicap ratings today.

Hitchcock, handicapped at 10 goals since 1921, was one of the few top-notch players not affected by the general downward trend.

The ranking announced today was the fourth straight year that Hitchcock had held undisputed possession of the top of the list.

The following list shows how the United States Polo Association rates the leading players of the country:

Ten goals—Thomas Hitchcock, jr.

Eight goals—Winston Guest, Reic Pedley, Elmer Boeseke, jr., and Cecil Smith.

Seven goals—E. A. S. Hopping, Stewart Iglehart, Devereux Milburn, Gerald Balding, Arthur Perkins, J. C. Rathbone, Aidan Roark, H. W. (Rube) Williams.

Six goals—J. P. Mills, Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, J. W. Webb, R. E. Strawbridge, jr., M. G. Phipps, Seymour Knox, Lindsey Howard, Rodman Wanamaker, H. E. Talbott, jr., W. S. Tevis, jr., Malcolm Stevenson, L. E. Stoddard, H. C. Phipps, E. W. Hopping, Harry East, W. F. Dillingham, J. W. Colt, J. Cheever Cowdin, C. C. Crawford, Carleton F. Burke, G. H. (Pete) Bostwick and Edward Baldwin.

SZABO IS FOE OF LONDOS TONIGHT

Airplane Spin, Backdrop Chief Weapons of Principals.

TONIGHT'S rassle night at the Washington Auditorium, and all day long yesterday the good local burghers filed into the Annapolis Hotel headquarters of the local mat trust and secured the somewhat coveted pasteboards. The reason for this display of interest is simple—Londos is coming.

The champeen tackles tonight Sandor Szabo, handsome Hungarian youth, who has lost but one match in Washington, to Dick Shikat, and but several in the United States, since he came here about two years ago, fresh from a Budapest butcher shop.

Both heavyweights feature sensational finishing touches to their performances. Londos dotes on what is known as an airplane spin, a revised edition of the old body slam, but still a dramatic manner of ending a mat show. The hapless opponent is picked up high above Londos' head, twirled around and around until he is supposedly dizzy and then thrown heavily upon his back.

Backdrop Chief Weapon.

Szabo uses a back drop achieved by holding his rival close to him and springing backward, sending the other bloke high over his head and down on the mat.

The preliminaries are in keeping with the appearance of Londos. In the other exhibitions Rudy Dusek meets Jim Corrigan, Doc Wilson tackles and plucks the nerves of George Hagen, Matros Kirilenko has a session with Herby Freeman and Chief White Feather, roughest and toughest of them all, comes glower to glower with venerable Tiger Nelson.

Cyclone Burns, recently rated No. 1 ranking referee in this district, will be the third man in the ring, it was decided yesterday. Women customers are not on the gratis list this week, and the management has announced that this blockade has been extended to the radio kibitzers.

G. W. to Award Letters To 22 Gridmen Tonight

George Washington University's gridmen of the season just past will be feted tonight at the clubrooms, 1609 K street, where 22 regular wearers of the buff and blue will receive monogrammed sweaters for their labors during the football year. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Dr. Borden and Coach Jim Pixlee will speak. A captain for 1932 will be elected.

The letter winners are Blackie Hoffman, Wayne Chambers, Ralph Dike, Frank Blackstone, Walter Slaird, Fred Mulvey, John Fenlon, Arthur Krimmelmyer, Joe Carter, Lee Carlin, John Matia, Kermitt Steward, Bob Galloway, Finis Parrish, Ras Neilson, Boyd Hickman, Barney Hale, John Asher, Wallace Wilson, Henry Clark, Jerry Payne, Rudy Usnik and Manager Gerry Free.

Colonial Five Wins Battle Of Giants

Parrack and Burgess Stars in Defeat of Quantico Team.

Locke Leads Invaders; G. W. Ahead, 18-16, at Half.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S form-fitting gymnasium resembled the Valley of the Giants last night, as the place reverberated to the pounding dogs of the two biggest basket ball teams in this section, and the Colonials beat the Quantico Marines, 39 to 27, in a game marked by the sheer size of the parties to the struggle and the inhuman shooting eye of Wick Parrack.

For fully three-quarters of the hard-running tilt Parrack carried every vestige of dynamite owned by the Colonial team, while his colleagues showed definitely the hangover from the Christmas holidays. He scored 13 of the first 14 points earned by George Washington, and his importance can be further attested by the fact that when the half whistle broke the fiery play on the floor, a sleepy score recorder posted the count of 18 to 16, in G. W.'s favor.

Locke Leads Marines.

Sergt. Locke, Marine center, was the masthead of the Marine play in the first half, and would have stood out physically, but his 6-foot-3½ was equaled by his colleague Bauer, and superseded by several inches by Hertzler and Parrack and almost equaled by Chambers. Locke, featuring a one-handed manner of shooting, directed his team well and tied up the score, 16 to 16, near the half on two foul shots.

Coach Pixlee, of George Washington, brandished some sort of fis during the half period, which removed the rough edges from his boys. The Colonials became closely knitted from the opening whistle of the period, passed the ball better, "picked off" in more efficient manner, and midway in the period had the Marines showing definite signs of becoming winded.

Forrest Burgess, a veritable Lilliputian roaming in and among the legs of friend and foe, came to life in the fierce wind-sucking fray and stole much of the show from Parrack as the end came on. The Marines were still a formidable foe, trailing by five anemic points, 32 to 27, with but three minutes left of the affair.

Burgess Exhibits His Skill.

It was here Burgess came forward. Starting out with an inoffensive looking foul, he continued with an unbelievable running pot shot, capped this with a brilliant snow bird off a pass from Parrack and ended the game with a long shot on the dead run, which sent about 400 people out into the rain still tingling.

It is not often that two teams of this bulk and character come together here. Only two one-minute timeouts were called, both in the first half. Neither team substituted a man, nor hesitated a moment to rush the ball up and down the floor. Play was fast, fierce and friendly.

Philadelphia Bids First For Army-Navy Game

(Associated Press.)

If the advanced time of the bid has anything to do with it Philadelphia should get the next Army-Navy football game.

The city, through Philip H. Gadsden, president of the chamber of commerce, sent an invitation yesterday to War and Navy Department officials through Senator Reed to have the next service game played in Philadelphia. Officials of the two schools have been reported as negotiating for a resumption next year of the annual game.

Gadsden was advised no formal negotiations for a game in 1932 have begun between the two departments.

Last fall, when arrangements were being made for the playing of a charity game between the two schools, an invitation by Gadsden reached here after New York had been decided upon as the scene of the contest.

GRAY SEXTET WINS.

The United Typewriter girls basket ball team won its seventh consecutive victory last night, beating the Greenhorns in a thrilling 24-22 game. Eleanor Inlay scored 22 points for the winners.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

ROLLING with Deal's Service against Takoma Park in the Ladies District League at the Columbia alleys, Evelyn Ream established a new Central-South Atlantic record for women by rolling a three-game set of 408. The old record was made by Lorraine Guill while rolling with the University Park Team at Lucky Strike April 11 of last year.

Miss Ream's games were 133, 132, and 143. Needless to say Deal's triumphed over its rival by a 2-1 count. The new record holder has long been a star in the local duckpin circles, but never before has she displayed the brilliance that was hers last night.

In another District Ladies League match at the same alleys, Columbia took the measure of the Meyer Davis quintet by the odd game. Bess Kirk's 365 set was best for the losers. Doris Goodall's 145 game, a new season's record, by the way, and 361 set led the Columbians to victory.

Two Washington Canoe teams, Nos. 1 and 3, whitewashed their foes in the Nautical loop at Columbia. The former scored over No. 2 Team from the same club and the latter over Drifter's No. 1. Anchor, Bonzal and Colonial won odd-game victories over Potomac, Drifters No. 2 and El Dorado. Bill Nuber's 131 game and 345 set topped the individual scoring. Washington No. 3 had a game of 571 and set of 1,653.

Ed Parsons hogged the spotlight in the Bureau of Standards circuit at Columbia, manhandling the pins for a game of 130 and set of 346. Industrial's 512 game saved it from being shut out by the Engineers. The Ceramists uprooted 1,498 bottles while winning 2-1 over the Chemists. B. P. U. took the odd one from Files, and Mimeos did the same to Technologists in the other matches.

The third Ladies' District League match reported last night resulted in a 2-1 victory for Georgetown at the Bill Woods' expense. The match was rolled on the victors' home drives. Virginia Yarnell's 327 score was high for the evening.

The leading Hecht Co. quintet was bumped off by Colonial Ice Cream in the Business Men's League at the Hall. A single game separated the two at the conclusion of hostilities. Call Carl hung up a new game mark for the season, 622, as it handed C. & P. the stepchild's portion of a 2-1 count. Edmonds and Brodts scored clean-sweep wins over Fitzpatrick's Service Station and Convention Hall, and Kann's took the deciding tilt from Brigg's Meat. Whalley, of Call

20 Games With A's, Yanks, Nats Task for Red Sox as Race Starts

By BILL KING.

BOSTON, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—If the Boston Red Sox could start the American League race against the Western clubs instead of the slugging Easterners, President Bob Quinn and Manager "Shono" Collins would be a happy pair.

But the schedule, they expect, will again get their team off on the wrong foot, for the Sox have some 20-odd games with the slaughtering Athletics, Yankees and Nationals before meeting up with any of their Western peers. Prospects seem bright with one of the best pitching staffs in either league, a fair catching department, an infield with only one doubtful spot and a well-rounded and veteran outfield.

"Shono," whose watchword is "hustle," has moved the spring training camp from Pensacola to Savannah. Collins will start for Georgia next month with about 32 players, the

Ruth Sees No Reason to Take Cut in $80,000 Salary, He Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth told newspapermen today he saw no reason for taking a salary cut this year.

His two-year contract at $80,000 per year has expired but the Babe has not yet discussed 1932 terms with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees. Recently Col. Ruppert said no ballplayer ever again would be paid $80,000 and it has generally been believed Ruth will be asked to take a reduction.

"Last season was one of the best I ever had," Ruth said. "I've been so busy keeping in shape that I haven't given the salary matter much thought but I see no reason why I should take a cut.

"I would like to sign for one or two years at the same figure I have been getting.

PETABIT, 8 TO 1, CAPTURES FEATURE AT JEFFERSON PARK

Colgate Filly Six-Length Winner

Adrian Manages to Save Place Money From Alamae.

Five Records Broken at Tropical Park; Mills Riding Ace.

JEFFERSON PARK, La., Jan 6 (A.P.).—Petabit, the Colgate Stable's 4-year-old brown filly, liked the muddy going at Jefferson Park today and galloped off with the Times-Picayune Purse, the fifth race and feature of today's card. An outsider in the betting at 8 to 1, Petabit came fast in the stretch to catch and pass Adrian, one of the favorites, and go on to win by six lengths.

Adrian saved the place from Alamae, which came fast in the last furlong after dropping back coming into the stretch. Petabit carried 110 pounds, Adrian had won two straight at Jefferson Park before today. Prometheus, Mrs. W. R. Padgett's consistent gelding, found 119 pounds too much in the mud and dropped back out of the money after moving up to second place coming into the stretch.

The daily double paid off $81 to $2 to those holding tickets on Beige and Play Bird, winners of the second and third races respectively.

Five Tropical Park Track Records Fall.

Tropical Park Race Track, Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Track records were smashed with remarkable regularity here this afternoon, constant racing and a tropical sun tending to make the local strip faster each day. After Song Hit had made a new mark of 1:05 for five and one-half furlongs and Bird of Prey had set up a new record of 1:27 2-5 for seven furlongs, along came Mrs. H. Deture's consistent colt, Arras, to create another fresh mark, that of a mile in 1:38 3-5. This was accomplished in the Sarasota County Handicap, feature event of a good program. Two more, making a total of five, were hung up in the last two races.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLIGHTER, $7.60, $4.00, $3.40; GENEROLA, $16.00, $4.40; BERNICE VAN, $2.60.

BLIGHTER, suited by the going and away fast, raced restrained to the stretch, where he easily wore down BERNICE VAN, swerved sharply to the inside when clear in the final eighth and came away fast in the last fifty yards. GENEROLA, always a strong factor, closed resolutely and headed BERNICE VAN in the final strides. The latter, given a hustling ride, saved ground racing into a good lead, readily gave way to winner, but held on fairly well thereafter and just failed to outstay GENEROLA. BILL LUTZ saved ground almost throughout. SUNYORA had no excuse. BELL O' SCOTLAND tired and the effort may benefit her.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:27. Off at 2:34. Winner, H. Cooper's b. g. BEIGE, quick to get going, raced into a short lead under strong restraint, slowly drew clear after straightening out in the stretch, where he was brought to outside and was not threatened in the late stages. ARISTOCRAT began sluggishly, but gave improved speed after reaching the final three-sixteenths and, closing much ground, headed NIGHT CRY in the closing strides. The latter began very slowly, saved ground while improving his position and faltered in concluding stages. CHRIS PASCHEN raced wide throughout, was under slight restraint for a half mile and weakened after making a weak bid in the stretch. TAT had early speed. STUPENDOUS was unable to get up.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:57. Off at 2:58½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLAY BIRD, $8.80, $4.60, $3.40; FLYING WINGS, $7.00, $3.40; DON T., $7.00.

PLAY BIRD, improved, was rated under strong restraint for a half mile, quickly raced into decisive command at the second turn and dominated thereafter. FLYING WINGS, slow to get going, saved much ground the final half mile and weakened after moving up boldly approaching the final eighth, but outstayed others. DON T. had speed from the start, dropped back when racing wide into the stretch and came again mildly near the end. NERVATOR closed with a rush, racing far back early, closed some ground at the stretch turn, but faltered in the final drive. HARPOON quit under vigorous pressure. BROAD AXE was done after three-quarters. PATTIE KATE had speed for three-quarters. DIODORO tired badly.

BRIGHT KNOT, having speed, was inclined to loaf after drawing clear approaching the far turn, withstood strong bids from CHARLIE BILLS and SCANDAL SHEET entering the stretch and, shaking off the latter in final eighth, won under strong urging. SCANDAL SHEET began fast, saved ground throughout and weakened in the last seventy yards. CHARLIE BILLS, slightly restrained early, moved up boldly entering the stretch, but weakened while racing wide thereafter. JORGHENSEN was through after a half mile. Others were widely outrun throughout.

PETABIT, going in her best form and away fast, was under restraint until reaching the final three-sixths, when she responded strongly and, wearing down ADRIAN, came away rapidly thereafter. The latter began fast, had speed, saved ground and appeared through approaching the final eighth, but came again mildly and outstayed others. ALAMAE, a strong factor throughout, lost some ground and held on stubbornly. PROMETHEUS bettered his position slowly on the outside after reaching the stretch, but weakened in closing stages. ESTIN met early interference from JOHN SPEED, saved ground and was in close quarters near the end. HIPPIAS was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:21. Winner, J. Marsch's br. f. LADY MARSCH, lucky at the first turn and taken under restraint after a quarter, improved position slowly under a well-judged ride and, drawing clear in the final eighth, held TRAUMEL safe. The latter, badly beset and cornered at the first turn, worked way up gradually, was blocked when trying to get through on the inside in the stretch and closed fast when clear in the last sixteenth. ANNE ARUNDEL had good speed, saved ground and weakened under her impost in the stretch run. PEACE LADY showed a good effort. GERTRUDE READE lacked usual late speed. ELEANORA M. quit. OH YEAH ran out badly after second turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:50. Winner, J. ENTRAP, followed pacemaker under reserve, responded strongly when called on and, racing into safe command, won easily. ALTON N., under hustling tactics from the start, had good speed and bore out when tiring in the stretch, but outlasted the others. JOAN PAT, outrun the first five-eighths, closed ground thereafter and was strongest of all in the final stages. ROCKY WAY, restrained early, moved up on the inside in the stretch, but weakened at the end. LAD'S RUN and VIOLA STINSON was cut off when going well on the inside at the stretch turn. WISE SUSAN was always far back. AGNES SOREL had speed under enersetic riding for three-quarters, then weakened.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Jefferson Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Jan. 6.—A field of six sterling milers have been entered in the six-furlong dash of the main event on the program at Jefferson Park tomorrow. Although the track is muddy, large fields have been received in the supporting events, which are fashioned for the cheaper grade.

In the headliner, fifth event, J. Coughlin's double winner, CAMP DOUGLAS, which scored over a heavy track, is perfectly suited by the conditions and is favored to annex the feature. SANDWRACK defeated a fair field the other day and appears capable of furnishing strong opposition. CRYSTAL PRINCE has trained well at this oval and should gain a part of the purse.

FIRST RACE—On recent form, GLEN LAD, which finished second last start, appears ready to graduate. MAD FINN and VAIN GLORY appear to be the chief contenders.

SECOND RACE—ST. JIM, a game mudder, had to overcome interference last start. With better luck, the colt should show the way to his rivals in this six-furlong dash. COCKRILL, an erratic plater, should improve in the soft footing. ITSO is favored over KING HALMA for the minor award.

THIRD RACE—BEAUTY BRIDE has shown the most consistent form of late, anad is given the preference. RIVET displayed improvement last outing and is the place selection, with MARCELET third.

FOURTH RACE—I. P. Krick's GETIN EVEN is favored over C. V. Whitney's CHENE for premier honors. DELMONICO is moving up in this company, but nevertheless should hold the others safe.

SIXTH RACE—ELIZABETH BOLLA, from the Colgate Stable, finished second to Chimney Sweep last start, and that effort stamps the mare as the logical choice over her rivals. MORSNUFF has worked well after a brief rest and should force the pace. BILL LOONEY is selected for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—TROLL and ERIN GO BRAGH should finish in that order in this mile and an eighth gallop. The former is at the peak of his form and under the conditions holds a slight edge over ERIN GO BRAGH. TOMMY, a recent winner, shduld hold the others safe.

EIGHTH RACE—THE OKAH scored so easily last outing that the son of The Porter figures to repeat in this substitute race. OLD BILL would favor a longer route, but should furnish the opposition. IRISH needed his last, and may prove troublesome.

WILSON FIVE VICTIM OF EASTERN

Lincoln Parkers Win 10th Straight by 45-20 Margin.

THE Eastern High School five continued on its winning streak yesterday, added victory No. 10 at the expense of the Wilson Teachers in a game played in the Eastern Gymnasium. The final count was 45 to 20. The Wilsons held the scholastics to a 4-to-3 score at the end of the first period, but were never in the running thereafter, the Lincoln Parkers pulling away to a 16-to-10 lead at the half.

Ten of the eleven Eastern players used broke into the scoring column. However, Summers carried off individual honors for the day with six field goals and two fouls for 14 points.

NAVY SCORES ON COURT, 37 TO 25

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 6.—The Naval Academy Basket Ball Team, after a lay-off of nearly three weeks due to the holiday recess, resumed its schedule today and displayed good form to defeat the quint of Franklin and Marshall College, of Lancaster, Pa., by the score of 37 to 25. The victory marked the third straight for the Tars since the season opened.

The visitors uncovered a fast and tricky passing game that kept the Middies pretty well baffled throughout the first half although they were in the van, at 19 to 11, at the close of the period. Play was fast throughout.

Carl, turned in a set of 355, and Thurston, of the same team, helped the new record a bit with his game of 152.

Margaret Brunelle and Miss Minson led Convention Hall to a trio of wins over Recreation at Convention Hall. Each had a set of 321. Miss Burke's 288 was best for the losers.

The most important man in the Bankers League last night was McShea, of the National Bank of Washington, who spotted the maples for a game of 139. His team sang the chorus in unison for a game of 566 and American Security & Trust No. 1 muscled in on the proceedings with a set of 1,583. The scene was at Arcadia.

Wright, of Mount Vernon, and Lindamood, a team mate, thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the Georgetown Church League at Arcadia. The former rolled a game of 130 and his running mate a set of 364. Peck No. 2 bagged team honors with its 562 and set of 1,607. Grace Episcopal, Peck No. 1 and Mount Vernon won the odd games over Covenant-First, Calvary M. E. and West Washington Baptist. Peck No. 2 caused a row in the family by taking all the candy from Peck No. 3.

It required the combined strength of all Five Greeks to put Hecht Co. pinspillers in the hay at King Pin last night. The game had an important bearing on the outcome of the King Pin Business Men's League. The fifth Greek, Chipouras, with a high game of 137 and set of 388, was high scorer of the match.

At the same alleys in the Capital City Tennis Players' loop, Edewood put the skids under Rock Creek for a clean sweep, and Pan-Americans took the most important of three games from Claremont.

The old faithful, Ollie Pacini, was again plying his trade with great vigor at Lucky Strike in the National Capital League. Ollie's work, a game of 145 and set of 401, however, failed to save the Rinaldi Tailors from a 2-1 trimming at the hands of Judd & Detweiler. The winner's scores were 496, 600, and 569. The losers had games of 538, 585 and 566.

STOCK PRICES RALLY ON FAVORABLE NEWS

Average Advance of 4 Points Indicates Cheerful Tone; Trading Is Light.

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Security markets today promptly reflected the better feeling created by the speed with which Congress is endeavoring to handle reconstruction legislation and by reports that progress was being made abroad toward an extension of Germany's credits.

An average advance of 4 points in stocks indicated Wall street's willingness to be cheerful when it feels there is any reason therefor. Rather negative midweek trade news, including the drop in car loadings and further evidence of the steel industry's sluggishness, were regarded as less important than the progress which seemed to be under way in other fields.

The stock market was relatively quiet, but received only minor checks from profit-taking on the way up and closed strong at the day's best prices. Net gains ranged from 2 to 5 points for many pivotal issues and the average rise was the best since December 18. Transfers totaled 1,851,590 shares.

German Agreement Near.

Bankers here described as premature a report that a German credit settlement had been actually reached, although it was indicated that an agreement was near. It has seemed that the eventual solution would be an indefinite extension of time, provided that the monthly amortizations went forward satisfactorily.

Iron Age reported a slight recovery in steel ingot production from the holiday low, which set a new bottom for the depression, but said January replenishment orders were being placed slowly. However, it expected a moderate improvement before the month-end and believed there was a possibility that February would see a better seasonal gain.

Rumors of firmer copper prices were heard, although it has been believed that the curtailed production schedule can have little appreciable effect on existing surplus stocks before another month has elapsed. Westinghouse Electric directors voted the same dividend, 62½ cents a share, that was declared in September, taking the payment out of surplus since the company operated at an undetermined deficit last year.

Industrials Close Higher.

A number of prominent stocks, including United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, American Can, American Tobacco "B," Western Union, New York Central and Union Pacific, closed with 8 to 4 point advances. American Telephone was up 5¾. Allied Chemical 5½ and Santa Fe 4¾. Auburn finished a dozen points higher. Strength at the opening, following Tuesday's firmer tendencies, undoubtedly prompted much short covering. It had been apparent for several days that the market's technical position was very favorable.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. German marks rallied and the Canadian dollar firmed, the latter reflecting disappearance of year-end pressure. Sterling and the French franc eased. Money swung more definitely into its January let-down and call loans renewed at 3 per cent, with concessions offered outside. A good demand appeared for bankers' bills.

Commodities improved moderately, assisted in part by the security markets. Wheat's gains of ¾ to 1 cent accompanied better export sales and bullish Kansas crop advices. Corn rose half a cent net and cotton was up 50 to 65 cents a bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Big export buying of Canadian wheat almost 3,000,000 bushels during the week, and general buoyancy into grain values today, put wheat here at 3-year high levels.

Rumors that France and Great Britain had agreed on a 3-year moratorium for Germany gave added impetus to the upward swing of grains. Stimulus came also from assertions that the reconstruction finance bill would be rushed through Congress, and from renewed strength showed by the New York stock market.

Despite late reactions, wheat closed relatively firm, ½ to 1 higher than yesterday's finish; corn ⅜ to ¾ up; oats ¼ to ⅝ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Late setbacks from the day's top prices for wheat were ascribed to selling of future deliveries by agencies of the Federal Farm Board. An interesting development was that Canadian currency slipped 2½ cents amounting to 3 cents a bushel on wheat save signs that the United States was getting nearer into line for export business in hard winter grades. Meanwhile, Canada was estimated to have sold huge amounts of wheat abroad, largely to China but including some to France.

An increase in North American clearances of wheat was noted, the total being 7,352,000 bushels, about 3,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. Another bullish circumstance was that domestic receipts of wheat continued meager, with the exception of primary arrivals less than on those of the corresponding day last year. Notice was also taken of an official announcement that 10 parts of the Ohio Valley the winter wheat crop was in poor condition to withstand a hard freeze.

Corn and oats chiefly reflected the course of wheat. There was some improvement in shipping demand here for corn.

Provisions responded to firmness of hog values.

BOND PRICES HIGHER IN CHEERFUL TRENDS

1 to 8 Points Are Added on Closing Sales; Germans Aid Foreign List.

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Led by German loans, both public and private, the bond market today staged a cheerful recovery. Prices of many issues closed from 1 to 8 points higher.

With the securities in almost every category apparently striving to rally, action of United States Government obligations cast somewhat of a shadow over the day's buoyancy. Both Liberty and Treasury issues were heavy throughout the day, six of them sagging to new lows.

German bonds seemingly aided the entire foreign list. The 7s and 5½s, of the Dawes and Young loans, were strong throughout the day and closed more than 3 points higher despite some profit taking. Berlin City Electric 6½s of 1951 gained 7½ points.

There was hardly a foreign loan that showed a loss in the session. Finland 5½s added 5¾ points while bonds of Argentina, Chile, Brazil, Poland, Colombia, Hungary, Italy, France, Japan and Great Britain registered advances. Canadian issues also were fractionally higher.

In the domestic list, railway and utility mortgages ran an equal race for favor, and the industrials were only slightly behind. Some of the bonds of Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific and Wabash were up from fractions to several points.

At the same time there were a few erratic declines that dragged down the averages. For instance one bond of Illinois Central, a legal 5 of 1955, gave up 34¼ points on a single sale.

Although the bidding for the popular loans was in higher figures, sales for the day totaled but $17,513,000.

The general upturn today was attributed partly to a feeling of optimism regarding Germany's ability and willingness to pay her private debts and the belief that the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation will soon become a reality.

Engineers Urged To Aid Fete Here

Bloom Addresses Capital Society on Plans for Bicentennial.

George Washington was an engineer of great ability and engineers here and the country over should assist in making the bicentennial celebration of his birth a success, Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, told the Washington Society of Engineers last night.

After his prepared speech, Representative Bloom informed the engineers that he was prepared to answer any questions they desired to ask about the plans of the commission. One question was:

"Dou you think the city will be able to accommodate the millions of visitors expected?"

Mr. Bloom answered this by lauding Dr. George Havenner, chairman of the local commission, as a man who would easily prove capable of handling any crowd or other exigency that might arise.

SCHOOL BOARD TOLD OF BUILDING NEEDS FOR 2 BIG SECTIONS

West End and Mount Pleasant Citizens Seek Adequate Facilities.

POWELL JUNIOR LOSES GYM BY TECHNICALITY

$90,000 Was Returned to Treasury Because of District Ruling.

Handicapped by inadequate school facilities, citizens in two prominent sections of Washington—the West End and Mount Pleasant—brought their fight for additional buildings and adequate sanitary facilities before the Board of Education yesterday afternoon at its meeting at the Franklin School.

Mrs. Belle Cutler Parker, chairman of the school committee of the West End Citizens Association, urged acquisition of sufficient property adjoining the Grant School, G street between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets northwest, for erection of a new school with a junior high school unit, asking that such an item be included in the 1932 budget.

S. Jay McCathran, jr., representing the Parent-Teacher Association of the Powell Junior High School, asked particularly for a gymnasium for boys at the school. The boys lack such facilities merely because of a technicality in building laws, Mr. McCathran pointed out.

Plight of Powell Junior.

Original plans called for the building of a gymnasium above the auditorium at the school, to be divided oy a partition, one side for boys and the other for girls. Building inspectors decided that the walls of the school building would not stand the weight of the gymnasium, and it was built on a wing.

Specifications called for "a gymnasium," and in view of this District officials ruled that a partition could not be built as that would make two gymnasiums. As a result, approximately $90,000 of the appropriation for improvements at the school went back to the Treasury.

The parent-teacher association is asking that this sum be restored so that another gymnasium may be added. The present gymnasium is used entirely by the girls, and the boys do their gymnasium work in "dark, poorly-ventilated corridors," Mr. McCathran told the board.

Request was also made for proper toilet facilities at the Powell School, and the concealment of pipes which run through the library and other rooms of the school.

Ancient West End Schools.

Mrs. Parker reminded the board that there has not been a new school building in the West End section for more than 40 years. The Grant School is 50 years old, the Weightman, 46, and the Corcoran, 42 and the Force, 53. The Gordon Junior High School, at Thirty-fifth and T streets northwest, is the nearest junior high school, to the section, and it is overcrowded.

The spokesman for the West End Citizens Association contended that a junior high school unit, added to the Grant School, could accommodate all the junior high school students in the section and relieve congestion at the Gordon. Emphasis was laid on the need of acquiring the property as soon as possible, as the new park program will enhance the value of property in the section.

The last census showed that there are 1,100 children of school age in the West End section. Some of the classes at the Grant School have been reduced by transferring pupils to other schools, but there is still a part-time class at the Grant School, and the total enrollment at the Grant-Weightman unit has increased. The Weightman is at Twenty-third and M streets northwest, and accommodates crippled children.

The Grant School has only two wash bowls for nearly 500 children, lacks hot water, and toilet facilities are described as bad.

Vocational School Step.

Both requests were turned over to the finance committee of the board for early consideration.

The board took a forward step toward improvement of the vocational school system, in submitting recommendations of the advisory vocational school committee to the legislative and finance committee for report at the next meeting. These recommendations, which were presented to the board by Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, call for elevating the vocational school to the level of the junior high. This will mean a higher grade of teacher.

Dr. Ballou presented a report showing that a total of $59,219.05 has been subscribed to the Community Chest by 3,973 employes in the public school system. Approximately $642 of this will go to the charitable organizations in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Of the total number of subscribers, 3,200 gave three days' pay, 46 more than three days, and 318 less. This total donation is a part of the sum of almost $1,000,000 specified as the contribution of Government employes in a report earlier in the week from Commissioner Campbell, of the Civil Service Commission.

TECHNICALITY BARS COMMITTEE ACTION ON DELINQUENT TAX

Chairman Norton Says It Is Now "Too Late" to Save Some Properties.

PUBLIC WELFARE QUIZ DEMANDED BY BOWMAN

Bill for Merger of Local Street Railway Lines Is Tabled.

A technicality yesterday blocked House District committee action on the plan to extend a year of grace to delinquent taxpayers, after the alternative proposal, approved by the corporation counsel had been laid before the group.

The alternative plan, which would extend the period of redemption after sale for taxes by one year, was temporarily defeated when Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, raised a point of order.

The proposal, put forward by Attorney Jesse C. Duke, after the District Commissioners reported unfavorably on Chairman Mary T. Norton's bill for a year's moratorium on tax sales, was approved by Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride just before Patman's point of order forced adjournment. Motion had been made to direct a subcommittee to draft a new bill along lines proposed by Duke.

Says It's "Too Late" Now.

Mrs. Norton afterward expressed the view that it now is "too late" to relieve those whose properties go up for sale for delinquencies next week. She said, however, she has not abandoned her project.

Today she will appoint a subcommittee to determine whether investigation of the handling of the Edith Riley case is deemed necessary.

Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, yesterday introduced a sweeping resolution, asking investigation of the Board of Public Welfare of the administrative and judicial services of the District covering care of dependent children, and inquiry into associations and organizations whose activities are restricted to voluntary contributions in Community Chest drives.

The latter provision was stricken out after members protested it would not be fair to mention specific charitable organizations in view of the approaching Community Chest drive.

Street Car Bill Tabled.

The committee tabled the bill for merger of local street railway lines.

It asked the District Commissioners for a report on the bill to name the Sixteenth street entrance to the District, "Blair Place." Another name, "Blair Portal," is favored by the director of the Park and Planning Commission.

A proposal by Representative Bowman that the committee occasionally go into executive session to "weed out" unnecessary bills, was received favorably by Chairman Norton, who said she intended to follow the practice.

Umbrella Is Blamed In Accident to Woman

The heavy rain and a lowered umbrella was blamed last night for an accident in which Mrs. Imogene Brown, 60, of Portland Hotel, was injured.

Mrs. Brown had stepped from a street car and was attempting to cross Fourteenth street, just south of Thomas Circle, when she was knocked down by an automobile driven by Robert B. Widinyer, 22, of 736 Twelfth street northwest. The woman was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts on the face and bruises. Widinyer told police the woman had her umbrella lowered over her head and did not see him. He said he jammed on the brakes and almost had stopped when his car hit her.

MEETING OF SENATE GROUP SET TO PLAN MAPES BILL ACTION

District Committee Will Gather Saturday to Map Procedure.

FORMAL HEARINGS DUE SOME TIME NEXT WEEK

Capper Will Offer Proposal to Submit Measures to Efficiency Bureau.

Procedure to be followed by the Senate District committee in its study of the Mapes tax measures will be mapped Saturday at a meeting of the group called by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman.

Though formal hearings will not be started until later, Chairman Capper said he probably will consult with members as to when the meeting will be opened and the manner of conducting the inquiry.

He will lay before the committee his plan to submit four tax bills to the Bureau of Efficiency for study and report, he said.

King Would End Bureau.

Opposition to this move is expected from Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, who has proposed that the bureau be abolished.

Senator Capper stated definitely that proposed investigation of the manner in which the Edith Riley case was handled by welfare organizations will not come up Saturday. He may press this question later before the District appropriations subcommittee, he said.

Four bills have been placed on the committee's calendar for consideration Saturday.

Bills on Calendar.

They include a bill to extend the regulatory powers of the commissioners, one to legalize credit unions in the District, another to qualify the District tax assessor to testify as an expert at condemnation proceedings, and a fourth to protect union labels in the District.

When the Senate District committee opens hearings on the Mapes bills, probably some time next week, Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the District appropriations subcommittee, will be invited to attend.

He has taken an emphatic stand against enactment of any of the measures.

MUSICIAN IS DEAD; SUICIDE INDICATED

Former Navy Man Recently Was Discharged From St. Elizabeths.

William Gibbons, 35, former Navy musician, late yesterday was found unconscious on the floor of a garage in the rear of 514 Ninth street southeast. He was hurried to Casualty Hospital, but was pronounced dead upon arrival. His throat had been slashed.

Gibbons was a roomer at the Ninth street address. He was found by Martin Cribbins, his landlord. Cribbins handed over to police a razor found nearby. Gibbons had recently been discharged from treatment for a mental disorder at St. Elizabeths Hospital, police learned.

Gibbons was discharged from the Navy with a first class musician's rating in 1927. He had served twelve years. Police found $141 and a service bonus certificate among his papers. The papers indicated Gibbons was from Charleston, S. C. His mother lives in Waite Park, Minn. She was notified by police.

Coroner Joseph D. Rogers was notified, but had not issued a certificate late yesterday, although police said all indications pointed to suicide.

Dr. Higbie Outlines New Teacher Plan

Wilson College President Evolves Way to Pick Natural Instructor.

The modern four-year course for prospective school teachers, now being introduced at Wilson Teachers' College, will facilitate the problem of selecting men and women best suited to the teaching profession, Dr. E. C. Higbie, new president of Wilson Teachers' College, told the District of Columbia Public School Association at a meeting last night in Franklin School.

Dr. Higbie outlined the plan of teaching he is introducing, showing how academic work will be correlated with class room training in such a way that those who are found unsuited to the teaching profession after the second year will not have wasted their time as they will have laid a foundation for the pursuit of some other professional work.

Dr. Higbie's course is based on a frame work of history, English, science and physical education. All students will be placed in one large class in the sophomore year, and at this period those meant to be teachers could be selected, he explained.

New Charity Gift Cards Permitted

Government Workers Now Can Designate Recipient of Donation.

Government workers living in Prince Georges County, who did not designate to what county charity they wish their Community Chest donations to go, may withdraw their pledges and make new ones, according to Thomas E. Campbell, chairman of the Department Relief Fund.

Donations of county residents who did not specify where they desire their gifts to go will not be turned over to the county charities, however, Mr. Campbell said. The new pledge cards made out in place of those withdrawn should state which of the recognized Maryland charities is to receive the money.

An appeal has been issued by the St. Vincent de Paul Society of St. Jerome's Catholic Church for all members in Government service to stipulate that their contributions shall go to this Hyattsville organization. The appeal was made by the Rev. Andrew J. Carey, the pastor, and Caesar L. Aiello, president of the society.

NEW POLICE SCHOOL HELD NOT NECESSARY BY COMMISSIONERS

Adverse Report to Congress in Accord With Idea of Gen. Glassford.

LIFE TERM FOR DEATH PENALTY NOT FAVORED

Bill to Ban Vivisection Is Hit as Blow at Finding Causes of Human Ills.

Adverse action on a bill to provide for the establishment of a school for the training of policemen and policewomen within the District, was recommended by the District Commissioners yesterday afternoon in a report to Congress. The opposition was in accord with a recommendation by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

"It is the opinion of the Commissioners that as far as the District of Columbia is concerned there is no necessity for establishing such a school," the report stated. "Appointments to the police force are made from candidates certified by the Civil Service Commission after examination, and appointees to the police force are required to attend a school established by the major and superintendent of police for instruction in their duties."

The bill also provided for a governing board consisting of the superintendent of schools, the Attorney General and a third person to be appointed by the President.

Regarding Death Penalty.

The Commissioners also reported adversely on the measure designed to substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty in the District. This recommendation was made over the favorable report of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and on the day of the death of Cuno H. Rudolph, former District Commissioner, who was long a foe of capital punishment in Washington.

"The Commissioners are of the opinion that capital punishment for felonies, as now provided by law, is a greater deterrent of crime than life imprisonment as proposed in this bill," the report stated.

In recommending a favorable report Mr. Bride said, "I think the bill is in line with modern thought on the subject and with modern legislation."

Vivisection Is Defended.

Adverse action likewise was urged in regard to a bill to prohibit experiments upon living dogs in the District on the ground that scientific research would be impaired were the measure to be adopted.

Pointing out that many human lives are saved through valuable discoveries made by the vivisection of dogs, the Commissioners added: "If the causes of disease among human beings are to be discovered and these diseases properly treated, legitimate research must go on."

The Commissioners straddled a bill providing for the closing of barber shops in the District on Sundays. They said they knew of no reason why the measure should not be enacted, but they likewise were aware of no demand for such legislation.

Man Held in Drug Net Is Remanded to Jail

James Rhome, arrested last week on a narcotic charge, was remanded to jail yesterday by United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage when he proved unable to provide $3,000 bond. Rhome was one of the dozen arrested in a round-up of so-called violators of the Harrison law here.

Husband of Former Police Phone Operator Vainly Held Raid Illegal.

Jay Franklin Jett, husband of Mrs. Anna May Jett, formerly a telephone operator at Police Headquarters, was found guilty of charges of manufacture, possession, and possession of paraphernelia to manufacture liquor by a jury in Justice Oscar R. Luhring's court yesterday.

Jett was arested August 10, when members of the Second District Raiding Squad searched his home, then at 3701 Seventeenth street northwest, and found a large quantity of liquor in thirteen kegs. The kegs bore inscriptions setting forth the quality of the liquor contained in them. Some were marked "good" or "poor" or "excellent."

Under the questioning of John J. Sirica, Assistant United States Attorney, the raiders told of having climbed a tall tree in the Monastery grounds, back of the Jett home, from which point they watched proceedings in the Jett's attic.

On the strength of information thus obtained, the United States Commissioner issued a search warrant and the place was raided. A quart of liquor alleged to have been thrown by Jett from his car was salvaged and was shown in court. Government chemists said it contained about 50 per cent alcohol.

James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett, attorneys for Jett, strenuously objected to introduction of the evidence on the grounds of illegal search and seizure. They were overruled by Justice Luhring.

Proud was charged with having slapped Mrs. Gertrude Gutman, 120 E street northwest, while they were arguing over the cause of a collision between a car driven by Mrs. Gutman's husband and Proud. After slapping the woman Proud jumped into his own car and fled police said.

He was pursued by Policeman J. E. Kane, of the First Precinct, but escaped. Yesterday he walked into the First Precinct Station and surrendered.

TWO MORE ARE CITED IN MAGAZINES DRIVE

133 Now Named in Campaign to Rid City of Salacious Publications.

The list of persons caught in the drive inaugurated by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to drive salacious publications from the city was raised to 133 yesterday when two additional persons were named in warrants as having been found with banned magazines in their stores.

They were Sophie Denneberg, 5919 Georgia avenue northwest, and Earl Richardson, 333 Carroll street northwest. They will probably be notified, to come to the Second Precinct Station and post the usual collateral of $25.

Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz issued the warrants for the arrest of the two. Policeman Melvin Creel, of the Second Precinct, applied for the warrants after he had visited the places and observed the magazines.

No legal action in any of the cases will be had until motions of six who pleaded not guilty and demanded jury trials have been acted upon. Attorneys for these persons have until Saturday in which to file motions, and if the motions are overruled, the date for trial will be set, probably for late next week.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The sale of four magazines dealing with the less elegant sides of humor were banned here today by police authorities.

Copies of the magazines were ordered removed from newsstands.

Calling one of the magazines by name, Maj. R. B. Jordan, police chief, said, "It was rotten."

He said news dealers who refuse to obey the ultimatum will be arrested and added that the sale of "obscene literature" is a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum penalty of $500 fine or twelve months in jail or both.

Pensions to All Widows Of Veterans to Be Asked

Enlargement of hospitalization facilities for veterans, and passage of a law providing for pensions for widows of all service men, regardless of whether they die in service or not, will be among the principal legislative objectives of the American Legion this year, the Sergt. Jasper Post was told last night by Col. John Thomas Taylor, national vice chairman of the legislative committee.

Col. Taylor said 885 resolutions were adopted at the legion convention in Detroit, and pointed out that it is his duty to see that the most exigent of these reaches the present session of Congress. Twelve new members were admitted to the Jasper post, Department Commander F. G. Fraser giving them the oath of office. Edward L. Marthill, commander of the Jasper Post presided. The meeting was held at the Thomas Circle Club.
